

THE CENTRAL RECORD.

THIRTY THIRD YEAR

LANCASTER, KY., THURSDAY AFTERNOON, AUGUST 24, 1922.

NUMBER 20.

PERMANENT ORGANIZATION

Garrard County Christian Endeavor Elect Officers

A permanent organization of the Garrard County Christian Endeavor Union was effected last Sunday when representatives of all of the nine societies of the county met at the Paint Lick Christian church for an all-day meeting. Miss Irene Aldridge of the Lancaster Christian church was made President, Miss Dora Scott of the Fairview church, Vice President and Miss Emma Burchell of the Paint Lick church, Secretary and Treasurer. Great interest was shown thru out the meeting. The county officers were assisted thruout the day by Mr. C. B. Bastin, of Lancaster and Miss Katie Carpenter, of Harrodsburg, President and Secretary of the Ninth District Kentucky Christian Endeavor Union.

The ladies of the Paint Lick church served dinner on the grounds such as only Kentuckians know, which goes without saying. "It was fit for Kings."

The next meeting of the Union will be held at the Manse Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon, September 17th.

U R invited to C. E. next Sunday.

Judge Treadway

Named by Governor Morrow to Look After Coal Prices Here

Governor Morrow has recommended to the authorities at Washington that the coal operators of Kentucky be permitted to charge $4.50 a ton for coal at the mines and the authorities there have confirmed his recommendation, the previous agreed prices being $3.50 a ton at the mine. To prevent any coal profiteering thruout the state Governor Morrow has named all the county judges in the state to look after the retail end of it. Judge Treadway has received official notice of his appointment and has consulted with the local dealers in Lancaster, agreeing upon a price of $8.00 a ton for what coal is now on hand, which is said to have been purchased at a higher price. There is only about 30 tons now in the city, and when this is sold, the retail price will be $7.75 a ton. With a price of $4.50 at the mine and freight charges of $1.75, this leaves $1.50 profit per ton to the dealer.

The above price is f. o. b. yards, the delivery price being a little higher.

Governor Morrow made a wise selection in choosing Judge Treadway, whom we are sure will look well after the interests of the consumer and at the same time deal fairly with the merchant.

Lancaster Gets Big

C. E. Convention

The Ninth District Kentucky Christian Endeavor Union will meet in Lancaster, Saturday and Sunday, October 20th. and 21st.

Wonderful progress has been made during the past twelve months in the Ninth District and we are assured that this will be the greatest convention ever held in the Ninth.

CITY MUST SPEND

Several Thousand Dollars or Insurance Rate Will be Increased

The State Fire Marshall and a representative from the Actuarial Bureau have been in the city this week, inspecting the fire system of the city, and as a result have recommended some drastic and expensive changes in order to maintain the present rate of insurance to the city property.

Among the improvements demanded, is a more modern pumping system at the water works plant, several thousand feet of new hose and a modern fire truck. Mayor Champ informs us that the expenditure demanded by the insurance authorities, will cost from $3,000 to $5,000 and perhaps more. Action upon the matter will be taken up at the next meeting of the City Council, which will be Monday evening, September 4th., and which time the public is asked to attend and express its views upon this vital and important question.

Mayor Champ was advised, that unless such expenditures were made at once, the rates would be increased over the present rate, from 25 to 38 per cent.

Lexington Road

Closed to Public For Several Weeks

The Lexington road from Lancaster to Camp Dick Robinson has been closed to the public for a term of several weeks, possibly two or three months, while the contract for the reconstruction of four miles of the road is being fulfilled by Messrs. Hughes and Ware, our local road builders. In the bid which they made to the Fiscal Court, it was specified that the road must be closed to the general public during its reconstruction. It is almost impossible to do continuous work of this character, when the workmen are being constantly interrupted by the general public. These public spirited contractors, however, have agreed to the passing of all living within the territory being worked, to pass all wagons going to and from town with grain, hay or coal and at the solicitation of many of our citizens very generously agreed to pass the Lancaster and Lexington Bus, one trip a day, to and from Lexington. This latter, however, is subject to change, after the detours have been properly worked so that the large bus may pass safely over them.

One of the detours is to go out the Danville road to the lane beyond Sam Bourne's, down Boone Creek and coming out to the Lexington pike at the lane near the home of Mrs. Nellie Goodloe. As the road progresses the detour will extend to the Fork church lane.

Many automobiles in reaching Lexington are going by Danville and some by Buckeye, the latter route bringing one into the Nicholasville road just beyond Camp Nelson.

Danville Boosters

Here Tomorrow

The Chamber of Commerce of Danville has arranged a fellowship tour, starting today, going first to Liberty Fair, returning to Stanford and Crab Orchard tonight. Tomorrow their itinerary includes Lancaster and will reach the city at ten o'clock for a stop of 30 minutes. Our local Chamber of Commerce will probably serve watermelon to the thirsty visitors and everybody will greet them with a glad hand and a hearty welcome to our city. Let every citizen in Lancaster be on the square Friday morning to meet our distinguished visitors and neighbors.

Baptist Church News

Sunday school services next Sunday morning at 9:45. There will be an important meeting of all members of the church immediately after the Sunday school services and all members are urged to be present.

The Junior B. Y. P. U. meets at 6:30. Union services will be held at this church Sunday evening, sermon by the regular pastor. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Loses Hay

Mr. W. A. Price had the misfortune to lose five nice stacks of hay by fire Friday afternoon. Supposed to have caught by someone throwing a lighted cigarette near them.

The proposed soldier bonus has served at least one good purpose. Everybody knows the meaning of the word.

Sale ties for sale. Hudson & Farnau.

THE NEXT GOVERNOR

(Editorial)

One of the real live questions in every community in this State is, who will be the next governor of Kentucky. The general qualifications that he should possess have been thoroughly discussed by the metropolitan as well as the local press, and a number of names mentioned who, if elected, might serve well as chief executive of the State. But no one had publicly offered his services in this capacity to serve the State until the published interview in last Saturday's Courier Journal in which Congressman Albin W. Barkley, in effect, announces his desire for the nomination. It, therefore, may be understood now that he is a candidate for Governor and that at the opportune time he will publicly announce his determination to seek this honor and the public mind may now turn to a consideration of his candidacy in connection with this responsibility.

In thinking it over it is practically settled that the next Governor of Kentucky will be a democrat. Prospects were never brighter for a democratic victory than now. Nothing save some colossal blunder or unnecessary factional fight can keep democratic officers from handling the State's business after the next state election. Any individual or set of persons who for selfish purposes would disturb the existing harmony of our party will be looked upon with disfavor and will be made to feel the effects of an irate democracy. The needs of a good administration of the State's affairs are so great and the opportunities of a united party are so apparent that personal grudges and minor issues must be pushed aside, that the party when returned to power, may be united to promptly accomplish the big and important things it will face.

From all who have given expression about it comes the one conclusion that in an hour of opportunity like this there is need for a new leader. The people are looking for a peerless Knight of Democracy, who has character and ideas, whose life is clean, who has had experience in public affairs and whose brain is clear. A man who is really capable of doing things, if elected to office. They want a man to lead who has the ability to rally the host and to fire their souls with a sense of responsibility. They want a leader who can kindle the fires of old time democratic enthusiasms. A business man, if you please, but not a novice nor an untried experiment in administration of the great public affairs. The demand is for a man of experience and of successful public and business career. Is there a centering of the public mind upon such a man? Those who are familiar with the current of democratic hope as it flows around the farms and stores, as it centers in the homes and as it crystalizes in the banks and business houses are all realizing that in every section there comes the demand for Albin W. Barkley to lead democracy to victory in this hour of opportunity.

Mr. Barkley nominated and the election is won, is the judgment of careful political observers. He has never been defeated in his political career either for a nomination or in a final election. Now forty-five years of age, in the prime of vigorous manhood, full of health and strength, he would bring to the State's public life the experience of a youth born and reared upon a farm, educated in the rural schools and well rounded by a thorough College and University training, the experience of years as a trial lawyer, four years as Commonwealth's attorney of McCracken County, and four years as head of the business and fiscal affairs of the same county as County Judge, with ten years as representative in the Federal Congress from the First, the Gibraltar Democratic District of the State, successor of the late Senator James. It would be difficult to find a leader so rich in native ability, and ripe in experience of dealing with and handling public affairs. His services to his party are well known. In every campaign of recent years the demand for Barkley in every Congressional district has been first among the public speakers and wherever the announcement of his speaking has been made, great crowds have gathered, who were moved by his strength and the power of his eloquent appeal for democracy. He has thereby made thousands of friends among the rank and file who will do their utmost to place in his hands the banner of leadership in the next gubernatorial campaign.

Albin W. Barkley was bred and born a democrat, with democratic associations and ideas, and always true and loyal to the party, its plans and its nominees. In his private and community life he has always stood for the things that are good and wholesome and for the things best for the promotion of the moral, educational and religious up-lift of his community.

The life and character of Congressman Barkley are such as will appeal strongly to the women voters of the State. Albin W. Barkley is such a man as meets the demand of leadership by the democratic party at this hour. We freely admit our deep desire for the success of our party, but in all that, we are far more interested in the development of the State and its resources for the promotion and happiness of a great and worthy people. And we believe the selection of Mr. Barkley as the democratic leader will best promote it all.

Chiropractor Here

Dr. H. E. Wade, of Davenport, Iowa, has just moved into Lancaster, where he will permanently locate to practice his profession as a chiropractor. He together with Mrs. Wade has leased rooms at the Rainey House where he will have his office. We gladly welcome Dr. and Mrs. Wade into our midst and trust their sojourn with us will prove both profitable and pleasant.

Don't forget the ice cream supper at the Christian Church, in Paint Lick, next Saturday evening, Aug. 26th., beginning at 6 o'clock.

Big Court

August Term Convenes Here Monday

The August term of the Garrard Circuit Court will convene here next Monday, for a two week's session, with Judge Charles A. Hardin on the bench. While the term is for only two weeks, yet some important cases are scheduled to come up during this term, many of them whisky cases, a few divorces and several land suits, involving large sums of money, the result of some, may cause heavy losses to the litigants.

Important Meeting

There will be an important meeting of the Chamber of Commerce tomorrow, (Friday) night. It is hoped that every member will attend.

QUAKER MAID

Opens Chain Store Here Tomorrow Seventy-seventh in State

The opening of the Quaker Maid store in Lancaster tomorrow, marks the seventy-seventh store, among the chain of store groceries in Kentucky and easily marks them the largest grocers in the state.

They have leased for a term of ten years, the store room recently occupied by Scott and Ruble and is one of the best stands in the city. The entire interior of this large store room has been remodeled and painted, both within and without, the coloring, green and orange, being in keeping with the color design used in all its stores. Mr. Edward E. Lighter, who has been with the Quaker Maid for the past three years, coming here direct from Eminence, Ky., where the 51st store was established two years ago, will be the local manager and in full charge. One of our local boys, Fleece Bratton, who has been with the Stanford store for a few months, will assist in dispensing bargains to his friends and gladly welcome them to the opening tomorrow.

Manager Lighter informs us that all the goods sold by the Quaker Maid stores are bought direct from the manufacturer, eliminating the middleman's profit and that they specialize in Nationally advertised brands of known quality and that they do not have "specials" or baits, but prices that remain the same every day, changing only when the market fluctuates.

The fact that we are doing a business of over $4,000,000.00 annually," said manager Lighter, "and increasing our sales $1,000,000 each year, is proof conclusive of the rapidly increasing public recognition of Quaker Maid Quality and better values."

The Quaker Maid believes in a liberal use of printer's ink and are using a large space in this issue, giving some rare bargains. Their stores are run on the "cash and carry plan," and say it pays well to carry it home, thus saving the difference.

YEARLING COLT

Raised by Carroll Reid of Lincoln Sells for $17,000

Much local interest has been manifested here regarding the sale of yearling colts at Saratoga, belonging to P. T. Chinn, from the fact that one in the bunch to be sold was recently sold to Mr. Chinn, by Carroll Reid, of Hustonville, for $7,500.

A special from Lexington to the Cincinnati Enquirer had the following concerning this sale, in which it said:

Kentuckians generally are delighted with the Hymar Stud's splendid sale. The owner, Phil T. Chinn, sold 43 yearlings for an average of $4,983.72. The last colt that Chinn bought from the outside was the one that brought the highest price of his sale, the son of Fair Play and Loch Linne. E. L. Davis put that mare up for sale in the autumn of 1920, and Gallaher Brothers paid $2,500 for her. She had been bred to Fair Play. Carroll Reid came along about three weeks afterward and gave them $4,000 for her. She had the colt which grew into one of the hand-somest yearlings in America. Reid asked $9,000 for him, but about six weeks ago Chinn bought him for $7,500. His judgment was fully vindicated when he was knocked down to Rancoas Stable for $17,000.

Heavy Fine

For Cursing Officer and Resisting Arrest

Bishop Warren, Jim Warren and Dolly Warren, all colored, were fined in Judge Kinnaird's court last Monday morning, for Breach of the Peace and for violating the one-way driving ordinance on the public square. When approached by officer Bratton, Bishop and Dolly became enraged and cursed the officer and defied arrest. This of course got them in deeper and they were all taken to jail. Bond was secured for their appearance next morning and resulted in a total fine of $68.00 which was paid to Judge Kinnaird after some little effort had been made to replevy.

Acquitted

A jury in Judge Treadway's court acquitted "Coney" Ralston last Saturday, charged with carrying liquor. Several witnesses were examined, but none were sure that it was liquor, and the defendant testified that it was wood alcohol, which the jury evidently believed.

OBSERVER

Says Sell Pauper Farm and Invest Proceeds in County Hospital

Dear Editor:—

For many years Garrard County has had a Poor House Farm, yielding a revenue, where it is supposed, paupers are cared for by a competent manager. Paupers are given an opportunity of working but how many do you guess have had the pleasurable privilege of boarding at the Poor House? We venture the assertion that not more than one has been upon the farm as a pauper, under control of the manager, for two consecutive weeks, during the past twenty years. If there has been at least one we would be pleased to hear from Lynn Clark, who now rents the farm.

What use have we for a farm that is of no benefit to the very ones for whom it was intended? If paupers are not to be boarded where they can be lodged and get good, square meals which they can get at the present time; if they are too proud to go to the County Farm, the Fiscal Court should sell the farm and invest the money in some kind of infirmary where the sick poor may be accommodated. There is no reason why doctors should do all the pauper practice without compensation, as they are now doing without a murmur.

You asked for suggestions. Our suggestion is: Have the Fiscal Court sell the Poor Farm and invest in a County Hospital where the rich and the poor may be treated. The physicians of the county could assist in the management with an educated nurse at the head who would take charge of the institution. Here would be an excellent opportunity for the Red Cross Association to do something practical.

Secure funds by voluntary contribution, by appropriation from the Fiscal Court, from the Red Cross, from the churches of the county and from the fraternal orders. We could have a Hospital day in every church in the county when annual contributions could be received.

This hospital should be owned by the county and controlled by the Fiscal Court with the help of the doctors. Let us have a County Hospital in which all could take a pride.

WHAT HAS THE FISCAL COURT TO SAY UPON THE SUBJECT? Observer.

Every Organ in

The Body is Vital

Every organ in our bodies is vital to our welfare and continued health.

These organs are kept healthy and functioning as a result of the active intelligent energy sent out from the brain.

This nerve force is transmitted to the organs of the body by the spinal nerves. To protect these nerves and as support to the body we have a spinal column.

The spinal column is made up of separate, movable bones. If one of these bones becomes out of place pressure results on the nerve.

The Chiropractor relieves this pressure by adjusting the vertebra that is out of place.

No pressure—no disease. H. E. Wade, D. C., at Rainey House on Stanford Street.

Christian Church News

September will be convention month especially for members of the Christian Churches in Kentucky and Garrard County. The National Convention will convene at Winona Lake, Indiana, next Monday evening and remain in session until the following Sunday evening, Sept. 3rd. The Garrard County Convention will be held at the Fairview Church about the middle of September and the State Convention will convene at Paris, Sept. 25th., and remain in session for four days. It is hoped that the churches of Garrard county will send delegates to all of these conventions.

The usual services will be conducted at the Lancaster church next Sunday. No evening services, however, will be held after the Endeavor meeting at 6:45. The congregation will join in the union services at the Baptist Church. At the morning service a matter of business of importance will come up for consideration. Every member of the congregation is especially urged to be present in view of this business matter.

Fall Goods

Buyers for Joseph's have been in the cities for several weeks buying goods for the fall trade. The goods are arriving daily, and a big advertisement soon will tell you all about it. Watch for it.

ELECTRICITY PUTS THE FINISH- ING TOUCH TO A HOME

SEE BY IT. READ BY IT. COOK BY IT. HEAT
BY IT. IRON BY IT. WASH BY IT.

There is no end to the uses to which you can put electricity when it is installed in your home.

If your home is not wired for electricity let us do it for you now. The cost is less than you might imagine. The benefits are greater than you could conceive—unless you have used electricity before.

A personal interview with us will give you all of the details.

BASTIN BROS.

The average automobile speed maniac glories in the fact that he is a menace.

It is cheap glory, and the only kind that he can annex.

When we pass the carcass of a long dead animal we hold our noses. Decayed flesh is very offensive.

We should do the same with the poor egg who considers himself a speeder.

His carcass may be intact,
but the mind is a mass of putrefaction. This is evidenced by the fact that a normal mind does not require coercion in order to safeguard the lives and limbs of other people.

Hold your nose as he passes
by.

Soon he will take another route.

Who is boss in the home?

Most men would say that they are, while a majority of the women would insist that that is their prerogative.

It is probable that in most cases the woman is the boss—if there is one. But in reality there should be none.

The happiest and most successful homes are those where mutual confidence and a sincere desire to co-operate exists.

Such a home needs no boss,
although a guiding spirit is always essential.

Leave the management of the home to the wives. They have forgotten more in that realm than the husbands will ever know.

Europe reminds us of a kettle that wants to boil over but can't raise enough steam to lift

the lid.

The perplexed and harassed governments are growling and snapping and snarling at each other, but never reach the point of an open rupture.

Some day the fires will become warmer, and more steam will be generated, and the lid will fly off—and the munitions makers will be happy again.

Even in the midst of misery
there is much joy to be found.

Something New

If there is something new in this town, speak up—let's have it.

Human nature of today demands diversity of action, and thought, and recreation, and pleasure. The old rut is too small to hold us. It is worn too smooth to keep us within its bounds.

There was a time when people were content to rock along and take things serenely as they came. But that time is of the past, and we are of the present, with an eye focused upon the future.

We crave something new,
and are dissatisfied unless it materializes.

It is our nature to push ahead, and accomplish things, and pave the way for greater results on the morrow.

What have you to offer?

What Say You?

Consider the school children.
They toil mentally five days in the week, when mental toil is difficult and not at all attractive to one of their ages.

They have not attained that station in life where the value of an education is apparent.
To them study is a hardship that is forced upon them by parental authority.

How, then, can we wake the children up and induce them to take a stronger personal interest in excelling in their studies? How can we induce them to strive to be at the head of their respective classes?

Honors in marking do not appeal to them as strongly as they do to the adult. The juvenile mind has not reached the point where it can appreciate to the full the glories of 99 or 100 per cent.

What, then, will appeal to their young minds? What will supply the incentive that now seems so often absent?

Prices for excelling in study!

Let half a dozen prizes be awarded in each grade each month, so that all will have a fair show in the competition.
A single prize would not be sufficient. Too often it would be a foregone conclusion, and the incentive to excel would be destroyed.

Every child knows what it means to "get a prize." It is an event that overshadows many others with them. They will work for a prize when otherwise their inclination is for play.

It would cost a few dollars for our public school officials to arrange a series of monthly prizes, but it would be money spent to the very best advantage.

At any rate, the subject is worth discussing.

Speak up and be heard.

All in a Day

"It's all in a day," we hear men say.

But what is a day—for the man, and for the woman?

Custom says that eight hours is the proper amount of time that should be consumed in work a day. The remaining sixteen hours are for rest, recreation and sleep.

The husband works his eight hours at his place of business and then goes home to his super. His day's labor is at an end. After supper he lights his pipe, picks up the paper and proceeds to post himself on the affairs of the day. Or perhaps he goes to his lodge, or
"out among the boys."

But what of the wife?
Does she hunt a comfortable chair, and immerse herself in her favorite book, or spend the evening with her neighbor, or in a hundred other different ways that are possible?

Occasionally, but not often.
The dishes must be washed up and put away after the evening meal, and the kitchen and dining room must be cleaned.
Then the husband has a pair of socks that need mending, and some buttons to be sewed on,
and possibly there is some ironing to be done, and some clothing to be made or mended for the children. The kiddies, too, need some assistance in their lessons, and the baby has to be rocked and put to sleep in its cradle. And many other things must be done of which a mere man can not think.

Yes, "it's all in a day," both for the man and the woman, but the woman seldom gets the best of it.

BRYANTSVILLE

Miss Zillah Dawes was in Lexington Friday.

Mr. C. C. Becker was in Cincinnati
last week on business.

Mrs. W. K. Davis has been quite ill again for several days.

Mr. W. C. Rose has been spending a few days at Jackson on business.

Several from here have been attending the Blue Grass Fair this week.

Rev. A. P. Jones, of Wilmore, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs.
C. M. Hulett.

Mrs. Ella Deane, of Nicholasville, is visiting her son, Mr. C. M. Dean and Mrs. Dean.

Mrs. John Campbell came home
Saturday after a visit with relatives at Richmond, Ind.

Mrs. G. A. Bowling and daughter, Miss Jane Bowling have been visiting relatives at London.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bower, of Lebanon, were here Tuesday, the guests of Mrs. C. C. Becker.

B. A. Dawes, Jr., left Tuesday for a ten day's visit with his friend, Mr.
Harry Mitchell, at Hodgenville.

Mrs. Sam Deatherage, of Richmond came Monday to spend several days with her sister, Mrs. J. W. Bryant.

Miss Marguerite Woolfolk returned to her home at Lexington Thursday
after a few days visit here with relatives.

Dr. and Mrs. B. A. Dawes and Miss Amy Dawes were in Burgin Tuesday to attend the Baptist Association of the South District.

Messrs. Robert Lillard Guiley, Cecil and Woodford Grow have been enjoying a camping trip near the Danville Club House in Boyle.

Mrs. Norman Grow was host Friday afternoon at her home in the country for the members of the W. C. T. U.
The program was very interesting and most delightful refreshments were served.

The members of the Pleasant Grove
Sunday School gave a most enjoyable picnic Saturday at the Iron Bridge, on the Danville pike. A splendid lunch was served, and a very delightful day was spent.

Mrs. B. C. Rose, Mrs. J. Hogan
Ballard and guest, Miss Virginia Trisler, of Cleveland, Ohio, Misses Marguerite Woolfolk, of Lexington and Mayme Lee Ballard spent Tuesday afternoon in Danville.

Mr. B. A. Dawes, Jr., was host at dinner Thursday evening for four of his friends, of Georgetown, who have been spending the summer in Danville. The guests were Messrs. Olan Jennings, John Jett, Durbin Kemper and Wilton Long. The evening was most delightfully spent.

Friends and relatives here were very much grieved to hear of the death of Mrs. George T. Higginbotham, which occurred a few days ago
at her home in West Point, Miss.
Mrs. Higginbotham formerly lived here and was a most estimable woman and well liked by every one who knew her. The entire community sympathize deeply with the family in their bereavement. Funeral services were held in the Lancaster cemetery
Monday morning at ten o'clock.

King

Mr. Howard King died last Monday night about 9:30 o'clock at his home, near here, after a lingering illness of several months. He was about 43 years of age and one of our most popular and prominent farmers.
He was well liked by every one who knew him and his friends were counted by his acquaintances. He was a member of the Methodist church, having united in early manhood and had always lived a consistent Christian life. The funeral services were conducted at Mt. Olivet church Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, by his pastor, Rev. A. P. Jones, of Wilmore.
The burial followed in the Lancaster cemetery. Mr. King is survived by his wife and five children, also by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. King and two sisters and two brothers, who have the sympathy of every one in their grief. Mr. King was a most devoted and kind husband and father and an obedient son. His passing away has caused a gloom which only time can dispel.

Truth is stranger than fiction, and sometimes harder to find.

cause you have found another. Make

Farmers Find Culling

Removes Slacker Hens

During the last few weeks many Kentucky farmers and poultrymen have discovered that their flocks contain a considerable number of lazier hens that can be culled out and sent to market without seriously reducing the total number of eggs received, according to early reports which are being received at the College of Agriculture from farmers who co-operated with the extension division in having their flocks culled as demonstrations for interested persons in their communities. In one case the egg production of the flock was increased despite the fact that one-third of the birds in it were removed as culled in the demonstration. This was partially due to the fact that the remaining hens were allowed to utilize the feed which originally had been given to the non-laying hens.

W. L. Loyd Smith, a Union county farmer living near Boxville, reported that his flock of Single Comb White Leghorns produced as many eggs during the first week after seven culled had been removed as it did the previous week. During the week before the culling, the 45 Leghorns produced a total of 202 eggs while the 39 hens that were kept produced the same number during the following week.

On the other hand, the seven culled which were removed produced only one egg during the week after they were culled out and confined by themselves.

A flock of hens owned by J. W.
Alexander, an Owen county farmer living near Wheatley, produced 22 eggs more during the week after culling than it did during the seven days before culling despite the fact that one-third of the hens in the flock were thrown out because they showed characteristic signs of being non-producers. The 90 hens in this flock produced a total of 161 eggs during the week before being culled while the 60 that were kept as layers produced a total of 183 eggs during the week after culling. The 30 culled in this case produced only one egg during the week after they were removed.
Similar results were obtained by Mrs.
E. E. Brainer, living near Philpot, Davies county. Nine culled removed from her flock of 24 hens produced only one egg during the week after culling.

Few Conquerors Died in Peace.

It is remarkable how few of the dis-

All the women you meet are "dead tired," because they have been "canning, canning and canning." Last year they were tired because they didn't have anything to can.

Mrs. Mote Pollard accidentally invaded the belligerent home of some bumble-bees last week. She started running for the house, but was stung five times before reaching her point of destination.

Miss Mary Clark, of Lexington, returned Sunday after a two week's visit to Mrs. Sam Bourne, on the Danville pike. She was accompanied home by Misses Mae and Emily Bourne, who will take in the fair.

The following are the messengers appointed to represent the Forks church at the District Association, which convened at Burgin Tuesday: Rev. L. N. Thompson, Messrs. D. S. Swope, Ed Sutton, Forest Curtis and Gene Thompson.

The Ladies Working Society met with Mrs. Ed Sutton last Thursday afternoon. The hostess served some nice melon and grapes after the business session. A pleasant social hour was spent. Visitors present were Mrs. Telafus Pollard, Misses Emily Bourne and Mary Clark.

Many of the school children, students at Mason, have been very much frightened in regard to the reports circulated about the mad dogs roaming the country and compulsion on the part of the parents, have to be used to get them to school. However, one mad dog was shot by Mr. Ash Arnold, others are reported to have been seen.

The committee requested the writer to announce through this column that next Thursday is the day appointed to clean the cemetery. This is a community affair and I am further instructed to ask those who have relatives buried in the yard to contribute or send a hand if they cannot come in person. The ladies will serve a noon lunch. The Ladies Working Society will meet in the afternoon of the same day at the church.

The Quaker Maid is a chain of seventy-seven thriving, busy grocery stores operating in Louisville and surrounding towns and are the largest purveyors of foodstuffs in Kentucky. We buy direct from the Producer, the Canner, the Farmer, the Miller, and the Pack-er and sell direct to the consumer with only our small profit added. Every article handled in our stores is the very best that can be obtained and we specialize in Nationally advertised brands of known merit in preference to private label goods of unknown merit. We avoid all unnecessary expenses such as Long Credits, High Rents, Deliveries, Premiums, Trading Stamps, Etc., your goods reaching you by the shortest, quickest and cheapest route.

All our goods are sold under the "Every-day Economy Price Plan," which means that we do not cut the price of a few articles to use as "Leaders" or so-called "Specials" (?) or Bait and then expect to make up the difference by charging higher prices on other goods. Every item is sold at cost plus a uniform percentage of profit, the price remaining the same every day, and changing only when the market fluctuates. Think how handy this is for you—no worrying about getting there on Bargain Days. Just go any day with the fullest confidence that you are paying the lowest possible prices.

Simpson

A pall of sadness was cast over the entire community last Tuesday when the remains of Bernard Simpson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Simpson, of Pleasant Hill, were brought here for burial. His illness lasted less than a week and death came at a Lexington hospital where he had been taken with hopes of relief through an operation, but peritonitis developed and rendered an operation useless. Bernard was eighteen years of age June 4th. He was a boy of good habits and beloved by all who knew him, because of his quiet, kind disposition. The concourse of grief-stricken people and the beautiful floral offering gave testimony to the esteem in which he was held. His parents, four brothers, a half sister, his grandfathers and a host of relatives are left to mourn his loss. The only comfort they have is in the one who doeth all things well and the fact that he said of the future life "That's all right." May the Heavenly Father comfort the broken hearts and bless them as He alone can.

Bob-White Eats Beetles.

The bob-white eats the adults or beetles of the corn rootworm which lay the eggs that later become larvae or worms and infest the corn. As many as 12 of the beetles, according to the bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture, have been found in the stomach of one bob-white. The red-headed woodpecker, nighthawk, cardinal kingbird and phoebe also eat the beetles and reduce the damage done by the southern corn rootworm.

VETERANS WELFARE ASSOCIATION

Protest on Using the Following Poem Selected for Memorial Tablet

The Veterans Welfare Association has protested vigorously in using the following poem "In Memoriam" which a committee has selected to be inscribed on the bronze tablet and placed in Kentucky's Memorial Building, in honor of the young heroes of the late war. This Association think it entirely too long, "unmonumental, unworthy to be perpetuated in bronze for any noble purpose, common-place, and a worldly-minded trifle." Commenting further, it says: "The composition is weak, harsh, hard to read and discloses the pencilings of a novice."

Here it is:

"IN MEMORIAM."

"Dear Motherland, Kentucky, here we bring
The names of these thy sons who nobly died.
Who for Thy sake and Freedom's put aside
Young Love, and Lusty Life, and Call of Spring,
And strode down Death's dark ways adventuring.

We cannot bring them back; We cannot give
To their young eyes the joy of sunrise, nor
To eager ears the call they harkened for
The cardinal among the hills of home. They live
But in our hearts—and these are fugitive.

We shall go down to dust even as they.
So to Thy Heart, Kentucky, bring we now
These deathless names, A coronet for thy brow
Best-loved and Beautiful. And thou shalt pay Unending honor till Time's latest day.

And it shall be throught the coming years
Young hearts shall proudly read these hero-names
And feel within their own the sacred flames,
"We'll live for what they died for—spite of fears,"
So faith shall spring once more from blood and tears.

Keep safe these names; Thy sons who would not save Themselves at price of Liberty and Thee.
The 'Old Kentucky Home' shall hallowed be Throught the ages by the blood they gave Keep thou them safe, Thy Beautiful and Brave."

We often hear people remark that "it makes no difference what others think." But it does make a difference.

This town is a collection of people.

This state is a collection of cities and towns and the surrounding countryside.

This country is simply a collection of sovereign states welded together in a single and central government for their own protection and advancement.

The government is dependent upon the states, and the states are dependent upon their cities and towns and countryside, and the latter are dependent upon the people who compose their respective populations.

And there you have it—an endless chain of dependence one upon another.

Does it make a difference 'what other people think'?

Keep your mind centered upon the motor bus. It is the logical short distance transportation of the future.

A few days ago Chicago was in the throes of the greatest street railway strike in its history, with not a wheel turning.

But the motor busses were called into service, and the mayor imported busses from other cities, and automobiles and trucks got into the passenger carrying game, and the strike rapidly assumed the proportions of a municipal lark. Everybody was "getting there" regardless of the strike.

That was too much for the traction officials—likewise for the strikers. They compromised in haste.

Motorbus transportation means an end to street railways, and traction officials, and motormen, and conductors, and fat corporations and dividends.

The motorbus can go anywhere, on any street, or on any country road where other vehicles can travel. The street car runs only on steel rails and its route is never varied.

If an obstruction impedes the passage of a street car it stands still, and the people get out and walk without getting their money back. The motorbus simply detours and takes its passengers on to their destinations.

It is coming, and to stay.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Sanders and daughter and Miss Sallie Lou Teater were in Richmond on Friday. Hope Sanders had her adenoids removed at Gibson Hospital.

When Fortune Knocks

By GILBERT PAYNE

(©, 1922, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Chester Baynes leaned back in his seat in the railway compartment, hot and uncomfortable. It was a wintery July day, and he had come twenty-seven miles on a disagreeable journey. Baynes was district attorney for a tiny rural territory that had practically no criminals, and he had regarded the job as a sinecure until "Dopy" Troop, a notorious criminal, saw fit to turn his activities to his direction, and, entering the house of an old lady, murdered her in cold blood and got away with a haul of several thousand dollars' worth of jewelry.

The old lady in question happened to be highly connected with certain influences. Wherefore, on the fifth day after the occurrence, when "Dopy" appeared to have made his get-away successfully, Chester Baynes received a summons to the capital to undergo a grilling at the hands of the governor.

He took with him the chief of police, who had been a grocer, and whose severest task had hitherto been the impounding of stray dogs and the pursuit of urchins caught in the act of stealing apples or tying tin cans to curs' tails.

The train was practically empty, except for the chief of police, lolting asleep in one corner, with his mouth open, and a voluminous old lady opposite Baynes, who sniffed prodigiously, in the intervals of applying her handkerchief to her nose.

The slow way-train went jogging along, stopping unreasonably every few minutes, as it seemed to Chester. He wiped his wet forehead with his handkerchief, then rammed it down his collar, then put it back in his pocket. Everything was sticky and humid—and it would be hotter still when Baynes had his interview with the governor and tried to explain why "Dopy" Troop had not yet been detected.

The chief of police insisted that he was hiding somewhere near the scene of the murder, until the hue and cry died away, but Chester Baynes, and all the rest of the citizens, were sure that he had made his getaway.

The train jogged on, Chester got hotter and hotter, the police chief snored, and the old lady, leaning back with her eyes closed, sniffed.

Chester listened to the music of the wheels, and he fitted a sniff into every sixth revolution. Sometimes it came, sometimes it just missed. At last it became unbearable. He leaned forward in his seat.

"For God's sake stop that sniffing, madam!" he said.

The old woman opened her eyes, looked at him mildly, and went to sleep again. Sniff—sniff—sniff. Out came the handkerchief.

Chester was becoming absolutely frantic. He sat there, thinking of what the governor would say to him and of what he would say to the governor.

"Sniff! Sniff!"

Chester was feeling murderous. He leaned forward again and bellowed in the old lady's ear:

"For God's sake, madam, stop that sniffing. I tell you I can't bear it."

The old lady opened her eyes again, looked at him, and nodded politely. Evidently the old lady was stone deaf. She thought he had made some remark about the weather. She leaned back, closed her eyes again.

"Sniff! Sniff! Sniff!"

Chester glanced deliberately about him, and his eyes fell on the police chief's gold-headed cane, which had been presented to him by admirers on the occasion of his vacating the grocery counter for his more exalted office. He had lost all control over himself. He felt homicidal.

"Sniff! Sniff!"

Chester Baynes raised the cane and held it, knob downward, in the air.

"Sniff! Sniff!"

Chester Baynes let the knob fall on the old lady's head.

An oath burst from the old lady's lips. The chief of police sat up and rubbed his eyes. Chester rubbed his. The stick had knocked off the wig with the bonnet, disclosing the cropped head of a red-haired ruffian, who was even now making a quick dash for the window.

"Hold him!" the police chief shouted.

They grasped the man, who was fighting like a demon. But, impeded by his skirts, he was at last downed, and held upon the floor of the compartment, while willing hands soon reduced him to a condition of impotence.

"I knew it was 'Dopy' Troop soon as I heard him sniffing," said the panting police chief. "That's 'snow' in that handkerchief."

Chester Baynes looked at him with bitterness that gradually changed to nonchalance.

"It doesn't matter what you and I tell the governor, as long as we stick to it," he answered.

Right Thing but Wrong Time.
"Don't you think we ought to extend our business a little?" asked the junior partner.

"We'll be blamed lucky," replied the senior partner, "if we can extend our notes."—Boston Transcript.

Miss Ann Scott Deitrich, of Nicholasville, is spending the week with Misses Rachel Scott, Sades Ruble and Gladys Hamilton.

Mrs. Hugh Christopher of Burgin was the guest of friends here last Wednesday and Thursday.

Mrs. Herbert Brooks and children, are visiting relatives in Burgin and attending the Baptist Association.

Mrs. Laura Naylor and Mr. Ruben Naylor were guests of Mrs. Josiah McCulley, at Buckeye, last Sunday.

Mr. Tom Jennings, who has been in Richmond attending the Eastern Normal, is at home for his vacation.

Miss Elizabeth King, who was attending the Eastern Kentucky State Normal was called home on account of the illness of her father.

Miss Florence Christopher, who has been teaching in the Vashit Industrial School, Thomasville, Ga., is here for a visit to relatives and friends. Miss Christopher's many friends are glad to know that she will be in Louisville this winter, having accepted a position at the Masonic Home.

Mr. Howard G. King died at his home near here Monday, Aug. 11th. His health had been failing since the early spring but his family and friends were hopeful of his recovery and his death came as a shock to the community. Mr. King was a member of the Mt. Olivet Methodist church, an influential citizen, a good neighbor and friend and his passing is a distinct loss. He is survived by his wife and five children, three daughters, Misses Elizabeth, Ruth and Maddie; two sons, Overton and Marion, also by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. King, of Lancaster; two sisters, Mrs. Virginia Beasley, of Paint Lick, and Mrs. Emory McWhorter, of Lancaster; two brothers, Mr. William King, of Lancaster and Mr. Ray King, of Cement, Calif. The funeral services were held at Mt. Olivet, conducted by his pastor, Rev. A. P. Jones, assisted by Rev. Price T. Smith, of Lancaster. The burial followed at the Lancaster cemetery, conducted by Rev. Smith.

WITCHCRAFT, ONCE REPROACH

Will Now be Blessing to Salem, Massachusetts

Chamber of Commerce to Use Witch Burning as Motif for Artistic Community Signboards

Salem, Mass.—Applying good business sense to its advertising for the future welfare of the city's commercial interests, local Chamber of Commerce officials will endeavor to turn the ancient reproach of witchcraft into a blessing for the city. The movement has been initiated through a series of artistic signboards, termed "Community Boards," that have recently been erected at the several entrances to the city.

Salem is not proud of the part of her forefathers played in the hanging of innocent old ladies for imaginary sins in the exercise of black magic, but since no one is ever going to forget these foibles of the past, will turn them to advertising account.

The Community Boards are artistic. They typify two features that have made Salem famous—its colonial doors and steps and witchcraft. The design represents a fine colonial porch in white, with a brick background, while a witch is portrayed standing on the steps wearing the steeple hat and carrying a broom. There is a list of notable sights of the town, such as the House of Seven Gables, Peabody Museum, Essex Institute, birthplace of Nathaniel Hawthorne, Ropes Memorial and Witch House.

Prior to the erection of the Community Boards the chamber of Commerce dotted the highways with finger-posts designed to represent the famous witch, and so arranged as to indicate the direction of Salem, the "City of Witches."

Western Kentucky Farmers

SHOW INTEREST IN POULTRY

Recent poultry culling demonstrations conducted in Grayson, Hart and Muhlenberg counties by farmers' organizations, the extension division of the College of Agriculture and county agents brought out many indications that farmers in Central-Western Kentucky are keenly interested in poultry raising. The demonstrations which were designed to show farmers and poultry raisers how to distinguish between the laying and loafing hens in their flocks, also served to bring out many points on housing, feeding and control of poultry diseases for the benefit of those who attended.

The interest was especially marked in Grayson county where farmers received a total of more than one million dollars in 1921 from the sale of poultry products, according to poultry men. Five hundred and fifty persons attending nine demonstrations and one night meeting held in this county, a total of 150 persons gathered at the night meeting where important poultry problems were discussed. Eight similar demonstrations were held in Hart county and four in Muhlenberg.

The schedule of nine demonstrations in Grayson county took in the farms of W. I. Dehaven, Jim Larkin and A. L. Moore, near Leitchfield; P. K. Tabb, near Caneyville, R. E. Roby, near Church; John Hackett, near Clarkson; J. O. Washburn, near Caneyville; John Shain, near Spring Lick, and Jess C. Lee, near Leitchfield. In Hart county the demonstrations were held on the farms of Dr. R. D. Peterson, William Slinker, C. C. Winston, J. B. Lester and O. W. Moss, all near Munfordville; J. T. Gerald, near Cub Run; L. B. Bowling, near Canmer and J. T. Bryant, near Hardyville. The four Muhlenberg county demonstrations were held on the farm of D. Stewart, and W. W. Warren, near Greenville; V. B. Southard, near Luzerne, and J. W. Winn, near Dunmore.

The entire flock on each of these farms was culled by H. R. Jackson, poultry extension specialist from the College of Agriculture, in order to show farmers the method of distinguishing between the laying and non-laying hens in their flocks. Many questions as to control of poultry diseases and the best methods of increasing egg production by feeding also were answered for the benefit of those who attended the demonstrations. A total of 1,080 hens were handled in the demonstrations, 419, or more than 38 per cent of these, being culled out because they showed the characteristic signs of being poor producers that had stopped laying.

Mystery in Footprint.
Tradition has it that the first Spaniards to land in Hawaii were wrecked on the southeast coast in 1575; but the clear imprint of a Spanish shoe has been discovered in the surface of an ancient lava flow on the west coast near Honaunau, the "City of Refuge." Since the lava flow must antedate the building of the city in 1100, how the footprint got there is a mystery that will probably never be solved.

SADDLE HORSE

Is Staging Comeback, Says Investigator for Association

After Visits to 46 of Leading Cities

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 13.—The saddle horse is coming, according to E. S. Akin, a special investigator for the Horse Association of America, who has visited 46 of the leading cities of the United States collecting statistics relative to the present standing of the horse both as a commercial proposition and a means of personal transportation.

Mr. Akin, who is in Louisville in connection with the convention of the National Harness Manufacturers' and Leather Goods Dealers' Association to be held here August 21 and 22, said that the signs pointing to the return of the saddle horse, which has to some extent been eclipsed by the automobile during recent years, are unmistakable.

The message brought by Mr. Akin is of particular interest to Kentucky, for it is in this state that some of the greatest saddle horses of all time have been produced. There still are many breeders in Kentucky who will welcome a return to popularity of the saddle.

Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse Association of America, will address the harness men's convention during its second day's session on the subject of the saddle horse and his brightened prospects. Mr. Akin said, and every breeder in the state interested in this subject is urged to be present.

Not only are persons socially prominent and possessed of more than average means turning to the saddle horse, but Mr. Akin found, in many of the eastern cities clerks and stenographers and persons engaged in similar work in an increasing number were renting animals for horseback jaunts after the day at the office had been finished.

In practically all of the larger cities in the North and East he found great interest being taken in the extension and improvement of bridge paths and to points of interest nearby. This, he said, was one of the strongest indications of the rapidity with which horseback riding is winning favor from the city dwellers.

NOTICE OF ELECTION OF BURLEY TOBACCO GROWERS' CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATION

To our Members:—

The annual election for delegates who will choose district directors of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association will be held between the hours of eight o'clock in the morning and four o'clock in the afternoon, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 16th., 1922. Each member of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association is entitled to one vote by ballot for such delegates.

Candidates for delegates will be nominated in mass meetings to be held in the court houses of all counties in the Burley district on SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 2nd., 1922, at 2 o'clock P. M. Twice as many candidates as the county may elect are to be nominated and each county is entitled to one delegate for each million pounds or majority fraction of a million pounds of tobacco of the 1921 crop delivered to the Association. In counties in which the amount delivered to the Association falls below a million pounds such county shall elect one delegate, who shall have such fraction of a vote as the amount of tobacco of the 1921 crop delivered to the Association may be to a million pounds.

Growers who may not be able to attend the election September 16th., may vote by mail or send their ballots to the election officers and such ballots so voted must reach the election officers between the hours of 8 A. M. and 4 P. M., September 16th. If sent after 4 o'clock on the day of the election they cannot be counted in the result.

Delegates elected in the various counties will meet MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 18th., 1922, at the court house in that county of each district which delivered the largest amount of tobacco to the Association of the crop of 1921 and will there organize by the election of chairman and secretary and proceed to elect a director for said district to serve for the ensuing year.

Every member of the Association is urged to attend the mass meeting in his county September 2nd., to nominate delegates and the election September 16th., at which delegates will be chosen.

By order of the Board of Directors of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association.

JAMES C. STONE,
President and General Manager.
H. LEE EARLEY,
Secretary and Treasurer.

Announcement

We are authorized to announce Hon. Ralph Gilbert a candidate to succeed himself in Congress, subject to the action of the Democratic primary, August 5, 1922.

What May Be The Result of The Strike

The loss and inconvenience that has been suffered by the public as a result of the quarrel between the Union and Railroad Corporations has been huge. It has now touched every business and home throughout the country and the public is growing impatient that it is not settled.

The Unions contend that they cannot afford to surrender the principle of seniority and the Railroad heads still maintain that some discipline is necessary to properly manage so large a business as the railroad industry of the country, and there it stands in dead lock. In the meantime business is paralyzed and the public continues to suffer. No one has any desire to see labor injured in the settlement of the great controversy that has been going on since July first.

The right of labor to exercise and enjoy the privilege of collective bargaining is accepted by all. Neither does the public favor such a status of affairs as will either weaken or destroy our transportation system and the business interest behind it.

The very purpose of Union labor is to gather such strength by union and the exercise of collective contracting or refusing to contract or work as to stop transportation, thereby preventing the distribution of the necessities of life to the general public which will force both the public and the railroads to accept their demands. The unions have gained such power in recent months that their purposes are about to become effective. At least the public is feeling the effect of this strike in full measure.

As to who is right or wrong in this industrial controversy we do not pretend to say, but we do know that there ought to be some governmental steps taken to prevent a repetition of this wholly unnecessary condition which future strikes will surely bring, and perhaps even worse than this one. Congress should immediately take notice of the conditions and enact such measures into law as may protect and safeguard both the rights of Labor and Capital but above all, save the innocent Public from the incidental losses.

Public sentiment will eventually force such laws and will do so at an early date if the strike continues much longer.

Taxes—Lower or Higher?

The period for paying taxes is now approaching and many of the unfortunate who are liable are beginning to wail, the cry being that taxes are too high and should be lowered. It is quite true that taxes have always and always will be too high for some, but even the most liberal are brought to feel, in these recent days, that the expenses of government in all of its forms should be administered at less cost. We do not suggest that reasonable and proper progress should not be made along all lines, and especially for schools and roads, but even in this recognized demand for these approved and worthy causes, too much public debt must not be created.

In fact, no public debt should ever be created and incurred without the way provided at the time for its ultimate liquidation. Legislative appropriation even for the good causes, and there are hundreds of them, should never be permitted unless the way is clear for their payment at the time of legislation is approved.

The way and only way to reduce taxation is to reduce public expenses. When a debt is created by the public there is no such thing as reducing taxes until it is satisfied, and clamor all they may for lower taxes it will not be done. The time, therefore, for reducing taxes is the elimination of the debt or expense of public affairs to the point that you would lower the taxes. Remember that pay day is coming in governmental ways as well as with the individual and it is too late to get out of paying after the debt is made.

When you hear a fellow continually knocking this country, ask him where he came from. Ask him why he left his own country.

Ask him why he doesn't go back there.

If he says he is a native of this country, tell him he is not a credit to his nativity.

If he admits that he came from another country, tell him our country would not miss him.

If he is just a chronic kicker, tell him the devil is waiting for him.

There are many other things you might tell him, but it would be useless. Wholesale truths seldom sink into a tough hide.

It requires years of correct living to build up an unblemished reputation.

Often it takes but a whispered innuendo to destroy it.

Yet people who otherwise live an exemplary life will indulge in gossip that starts stories that grow into mountains of scandal that envelop and crush many an innocent person.

People who cannot curb their tongues should become hermits. They would be missed, but not mourned.

An editor was severely criticised by many of his subscribers for printing the plain truth in his paper.

Stung to the quick, he announced that on a given date he would omit from his columns every class of news to which any objection was made by any person.

When the paper was issued every page was blank.

To what class of news do you object?

Don't let your child "blow in" its first nickel. To do so is to give it its first lesson in extravagance.

Give it five pennies. Let it spend one or two for candy, and SAVE THE REST. That will be its first lesson in economy.

From the cradle to the grave is no great tax upon the memory of a normal human mind.

The farmer who has to go ten miles for a trace chain finds it an expensive purchase.

If the town man had to go to the nearest city for a pencil, or his wife had to journey hence for a spool of thread, both would be peeved beyond endurance.

It pays to spend your money with our local dealers, for the more they sell the greater the variety of stock they can afford to carry for your convenience.

Spring a New One

As you walk along the streets of this town, what do you see? What do you think? What do you say?

Possibly there is some obstruction in the way, some repairs that are needed, or some improvement that could be made.

You see the possibilities, but do your thoughts get beyond the confines of your own brain? Do you spring them for the benefit of your fellow citizens?

A bottle of champagne is only an aggravation to a parched throat until the cork is pulled.

It is so with those ideas you are carrying around in your head but never allow to become public.

Spring them—all of them. Some may be impractical, and if so they will be cast aside and no one will be harmed.

But among the number there may be one that is of inestimable value to our community.

That is the one we want—the one we need—but we can't benefit from it until you pull the cork from your thinkery.

Higginbotham

Mrs. Elizabeth Higginbotham, wife of George T. Higginbotham, formerly of this county, died at her home in West Point, Miss., last Saturday morning, after an illness lasting almost a year.

She was a daughter of Sarah and William Walker Cochran, of this county, where she was born May 13th, 1855. In 1874 she was married to George T. Higginbotham and the early years of their married life was spent in Garrard county, both families being prominently connected with the most influential families in the county. In later years they moved to Lexington, from which place they moved to West Point, Miss., about seven years ago.

Surviving her are a devoted husband and the following children: Mrs. B. W. Chaappeau, of Virginia; Mrs. J. P. Smith, of Louisville, Ky.; Mr. W. W. Higginbotham, of Lexington, Ky.; Mr. J. E. Higginbotham, of West Point, Miss.; and Mrs. Tom Floyd, of Danville, Ky., and several grand children, who rise up and call her blessed.

After a short service at her home in West Point, the remains were accompanied to Danville by her son, J. E. Higginbotham, the devoted husband being ill and could not travel, and were met at Danville by a large company of friends and relatives and carried to Lancaster and laid beside the loved son, John, who was buried there many years ago.

Services were conducted by Rev. E. B. Bourland. Mrs. Higginbotham was a member of the Christian church and was a devout member, always attending its services when her health would permit.

She ran the journey of her life in sixty-seven years. It is a path marked with deeds of kindness and cheer. Flowers, not thorns, sunshine, not shadow, did she scatter everywhere. Truth was the inspiration of her life, and by kindness she exemplified its great worth. She leaves many friends in Garrard who will mourn her passing, all remembering her so pleasantly and all extending to the bereaved husband and children their sincere sympathy and condolence.

Card of Thanks

We take this method of thanking our many friends for their acts of kindness, and for their many floral offerings toward our beloved husband and father, during his long illness and death. Mrs. Nell King and children.

Liberal Support

To be Given Throughout State For Christian Education

Statewide support in the Presbyterian movement for Christian education is promised not only by the 35,000 Presbyterians of Kentucky, but by many friends of the different institutions to benefit by this movement, according to announcement received here from S. W. McGill, director of the work. "We find," said Mr. McGill, "that there are many, not members of our church, who are vitally interested in Christian education and want to see our movement succeed. In addition there are many former students of Centre and Kentucky College for women scattered throughout the state who have written us for something to do to help. This is especially true of the Centre men who have learned that in addition to the $300,000 to be given them out of the $1,000,000 to be raised, the General Education Board of New York has promised $200,000, provided the $1,000,000 is given by the end of the year. That, of course, means a great deal to that institution."

Some interesting statistics have been prepared showing the strength of Presbyterianism in Kentucky. There are 20,297 members of the Southern Church and 14,315 members of the Northern branch, making a total of about 34,600. There are 192 ministers, 1,281 elders, 1,142 deacons, and 299 churches in the state. Both branches of the church are united in the present campaign under the control of a united commission.

Junior Club Camp

For Agricultural Boys and Girls

The first Boyle and Garrard county camp was held August 14th, to 18th, on the Perryville Fair ground. The kindness of Mr. J. C. B. Harmon, who gave the Fair ground and other citizens of Perryville, who sent ice cream and cake as well as fruit, will not soon be forgotten.

Each day was given over to classes in the morning, games and athletic contests in the afternoon. Each evening Vesper services were conducted by one of the local ministers, following which, each tribe gave a stunt. The children were also entertained with Radio music. The last night of camp, the children gave a circus, which was enjoyed by about two hundred visitors.

We hope that next year this camp can be held in Garrard county. The camp was in charge of Mr. Garnett McKenney, and Mr. W. A. Howell, of the College of Agriculture, Mr. W. N. Ewald of the Y. M. C. A., Mr. Chas. L. Taylor, Farm Agent and Mrs. Grubbs, Demonstration Agent of Boyle County, and Miss Joce Syler, Home Demonstration Agent of Garrard.

This scientific HEATING PLANT circulates warm air through the house—and takes the cool air out

Caloric circulating heat is the modern idea in heating. It gives to the air in your rooms the freshness and balminess of out-door air in summer. Provides an even and uniform temperature throughout the house.

Caloric circulating heat is simple as sunshine and almost as convenient. Takes the cool air out, as it circulates warm air through the house.

No pipes, no plumbing, no radiators—only one register. Costs less than stoves required to heat the same space. Reduces fuel consumption 1/3 to 1/2. Pays for itself. You will never be satisfied with old methods of heating after you once know the advantages of Caloric circulating heat.

The new model Caloric—with many important improvements—is now ready for you. Prices reduced to lowest level. Guaranteed satisfaction or money back. Let us show you this scientific and economical system of heating.

Miss Mary Owsley and Miss Eugenia Dunlap are in Nicholasville, the guests of Mrs. Frank Smith where they will be honor guests of a five hundred party.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ross, Miss Helen Gulley, Miss Laura Dunn and Miss Josephine Raney will motor to Lexington today and be visitors at the Blue Grass Fair.

George Carpenter was made doubly happy last week by the arrival of another democrat at his home. He has been named Ralph Gilbert, in honor of our esteemed Congressman.

Mrs. J. B. Kinnaird entertained with a lovely dinner Tuesday at her home on Maple avenue, in honor of Miss Eliza Dudley De Belle, the guest of Mrs. Robert Kinnaird.

Misses Cynda Belle and Susan Etta Allman have returned to their home in Richmond, after spending two week's vacation with their cousins, Misses Emma and Lula Smith.

Mrs. J. E. Elmore entertained Tuesday evening with a picture show party, the occasion being to celebrate the birthday of her mother, Mrs. Luther Gibbs. After the show refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Bastin and daughter, Willie Allene, Mrs. H. V. Bastin and children, Charles, H. V. and Marjory, will motor to Crab Orchard Springs Friday afternoon, where they will be dinner guests.

Miss Iva Lee Smith is in the city buying Fall millinery for the Brown Store, where she will have charge of this department the coming season. Miss Smith has many friends who will be glad to know that she will remain in Lancaster.

Mr. and Mrs. Theo Currey had for their dinner guests Sunday, Mrs. J. C. Hemphill, of Louisville, Mrs. John L. Anderson, of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Arthusa Currey, Mrs. Margaret Robinson and Miss Margaret Bright Robinson.

Miss Eliza Dudley De Belle, of Louisville, was honor guest at a beautiful bridge party to which Mrs. Robert Kinnaird was host, at her home on Maple avenue. The house was decorated in summer flowers. At the conclusion of the games an attractive ice course was served.

Mrs. George Fort, of Clarksville, Tenn., will be the guest of Mrs. Buckner Spindle, at the home of her mother, Mrs. R. E. McRoberts, this week. Mrs. Fort will be remembered as the lovely Lillian Crouch, who made many visits to Lancaster in her girlhood days, and who was matron of honor at the marriage of Miss Lettie McRoberts to Mr. Buckner Spindle eight years ago.

Mrs. Ross Bastin entertained with an informal dinner Wednesday at her home on "Hill Court" in honor of Mrs. H. V. Bastin, of Frankfort. A color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the table decorations of roses and in the watermelon cocktail and the ice course. Souvenirs of Cecil Bruner rose buds were placed at each cover. The guests were Mrs. E. B. Bourland, Mrs. Guy Davidson, Mrs. Will Embury, Mrs. Adolph Joseph Mrs. Stephen Walker, Mrs. George Brown, Mrs. Sam Haselden, Mrs. J. A. Amon, Mrs. Raymond Haselden, and Mrs. B. C. Rose.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Crittenden Pepper, a sister of Mrs. Bastin, and Miss Nancy Pepper, of Paris, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Bastin and children, of Frankfort, Mr. Clinton Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Bastin and daughter, Willie Allene.

The Garrard Chapter, Order of the Eastern Stars held a special meeting Friday evening at the Masonic Hall for initiation. Mrs. Yelton, Mr. and Mrs. Turner, Misses Kate and Lillian Kinnaird were the candidates. The rooms were beautifully decorated in hydrangeas, zinnias and nasturtiums. After the work a social hour was held in honor of the members and fruit punch was served.

Miss Katie Barnes Dickerson entertained with a beautiful dinner party Tuesday evening at her home on Maple avenue, in honor of Mr. Glass Carrier and bride. The decorations were of pink and white flowers and the hostess was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Will Dickerson. A delicious four course menu was served. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Carrier, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Francis Price and Mr. Irvine Stapp. The charming hospitality of the hostess was thoroughly enjoyed.

Miss Mary Owsley entertained with a pretty dinner party Sunday at her home on Lexington avenue. The table had for its center piece a large vase filled with yellow and red flowers. A delicious course menu was served. Rare beauty of appointments distinguished the occasion and the gracious hospitality of the host was thoroughly delightful. The guests were Miss Jean Paxton, of Stanford, Miss Emma Davis and Miss Virginia Hays, of Lexington, and Mr. A. Gordon Goodall, of Nashville, Tenn.

Mrs. Sallie Hurt entertained with a 12 o'clock dinner Wednesday in compliment to her guests, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hardin and daughter and son, of Edinburg, Ind. Among those present were, Mrs. Lucy East and family, Mr. and Mrs. Barney East, Mrs. Jessie East and son, Mrs. A. Casey and son, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Hurt and family, Mrs. Randle Lemay and son, Mrs. Rona East and daughter and son and Miss Margaret Moberley. A sumptuous dinner was served and the day was greatly enjoyed.

One of the beautiful social affairs of the season was the luncheon given the past week by Mrs. W. B. Burton at her home on Maple avenue in compliment to Mrs. Kate Wheritt Berkele, of New Orleans, and Mrs. Buckner Spindle, of Norfolk, Va. The house was decorated in pink and white flowers. The table handsomely laid, was covered with a beautiful center piece of Cluny lace and had for its center piece an exquisite basket filled with pink and white flowers. The prevailing color scheme of pink and white was also carried in the six course menu served. Covers were laid for Mrs. Berkele, Mrs. Buckner, Mrs. Lige Ford, Mrs. J. E. Stormes, Mrs. Robert Kinnaird, Mrs. Harry Rice, Mrs. Theo Currey, Mrs. J. E. Elmore and Mrs. John Scott.

The following invitations have been issued: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Elmore requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Charlie Elveree to Dr. Gilbert M. Billings Tuesday morning, September fifth one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two at eleven o'clock Christian Church Lancaster, Kentucky

Birthday Celebration
Last Sunday morning, August 20th, friends and relatives of Mrs. James Cox, Sr., gathered at the home of her youngest daughter, Mrs. James Peace. The enjoyable occasion being Mrs. Cox's 83rd birthday.

Mrs. Cox has been blessed with 11 children, 40 grandchildren and 45 great grandchildren. With the "in-laws" there are over 100 in the family.

The bountiful dinner that was served was delicious in every detail. All present did ample justice to it.

In the afternoon songs of Mrs. Cox's choice were sung, and at a late hour, all departed for their homes, after wishing Mrs. Cox "Many more happy birthdays."

More Kind Words
Mr. Malcolm Bayley, who so ably edits that popular column in the Louisville Times, "From Mills Point to the Big Sandy" is kind enough to say this of our recent Farm Bureau edition:

The Central Record of Lancaster has just issued a "Farmers' Bureau Edition" of thirty-two pages, four sections, which is one of the most interesting and instructive special editions, especially as far as the farmer is concerned, that has ever come to the attention of the editor of this column.

Splendid work, Mr. Elkin. Our grin changed to a broad smile when we received the following letter from Hon. Geoffrey Morgan, secretary of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, with headquarters at Louisville. Here it is:

"We are just in receipt of a letter from Mr. E. P. Taylor, one of the organization men from the Chicago office of the American Farm Bureau Federation, who helped us with the campaign in Madison county. He says he has just received a copy of the Central Record's Special Edition, concerning Garrard county and that this 32-page issue is one of the very best he has seen yet, and is way ahead of the issue from....."

"Just thought you would appreciate knowing that the Chicago Office looks upon your Farm Bureau Edition as one of the best put out in the whole United States. Now smile."

Sincerely your friend,

Divided We Fall
Every man has his own mind, and our laws accord him the right to free thought and speech.

This freedom, however, should not lead us into channels of thinking and speaking that produce friction and population divided against itself.

In union there is strength. In discord we face nothing but mediocrity and disaster.

We are a community unto ourselves, yet we should not live each unto himself.

As a community we owe a duty to other communities, to our state, and to the nation.

It is this community of interests that has made our country great, and progressive, and prosperous beyond any other country upon which the sun shines.

It is the same community of interests that will build up this town and our countryside if we employ it in our business and social life.

No nation today can live entirely unto itself and continue prosperous as the years roll by. No state can do it, and neither can any city, or town, or individual.

We must harmonize our differences for the public good and then work together for the advancement of our common interests.

United, we push onward to greater successes and achievements.

Divided, we fall by the wayside and are soon forgotten.

Don't worry yourself to death. It will deprive you of the privilege of self pity.

Man is a wonderful creature, after all. The Lord having failed to provide him with wings, he now manufactures them for himself.

Rheumatism at 60

S. S. S. Thoroughly Rids the Body of Rheumatism Impurities.

Somebody's mother is suffering tonight! The scourge of rheumatism has wrecked her body; limping and suffering, bent forward, she seeks but the common ground, but her aged heart still belongs to the stars! Does anybody care? S. S. S. is one of the greatest blood-purifiers known, and it helps build more blood cells. Its medicinal ingredients are purely vegetable. It never disarranges the stomach. It is, in fact, a splendid tonic, a blood maker, a blood enricher. It banishes rheumatism from joints, muscles and the entire body. It builds firm flesh. It is what somebody's mother needs tonight! Mother, if you can not go out to get a bottle of S. S. S. yourself, surely somebody in your family will. Somebody, get a bottle of S. S. S. now! Let somebody's mother begin to feel joyful again tonight. Maybe, maybe it's your mother! S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. The larger size is the more economical.

How glorious you will feel, mother, when your rheumatism is all gone. Let S. S. S. do it. It will build you up, too!

"S. S. S. is for sale at McRoberts Drug Store."

AUGUST

CROP REPORT

Indicates Large Yield of Corn And Tobacco

A prospect for big crops of corn and tobacco in Kentucky is the feature of the August crop report issued at Louisville and Frankfort by the United States Department of Agriculture in co-operation with State Commissioner of Agriculture W. C. Hanna. Tobacco in Kentucky shows a slight reduction from July 1st. estimates but a great increase over 1921 because of increased acreage this year, the probable production being estimated at 502,279,000 pounds compared to an early estimate of 520,502,000 pounds July 1st. and 325,710,000 pounds produced in this State last year. The United States total tobacco crop is much larger than last year, being estimated at 1,425,000,000 pounds compared to 1,075,000,000 pounds total United States production last year, and 1,378,000,000 pounds average production 1916-1920.

Probable corn production in Kentucky is estimated at 102,480,000 bushels compared to a July 1st. estimate of 94,378,000 bushels and a crop last year of 82,150,000 bushels. Wheat this month is estimated at 7,150,000 bushels compared to a July 1st. estimate of 7,553,000 bushels and a production last year of 6,340,000 bus.; potatoes 5,050 bus. compared to prospects July 1st., for 4,693,000 bus., and a crop last year of 3,770, bus.; and oats 4,975,000 bus., compared to prospects July 1st. for 5,420,000 bus. and a crop last year 5,567,000 bushels.

Rye production in Kentucky this season is estimated at 207,000 bus. compared to 180,000 bus. last year; barley 163,000 bus. compared to 144,000 bus. last year; sweet potatoes 1,912,000 bus. compared to 1,872,000 bus. last year; and hay of all kinds 1,265,000 tons compared to 1,127,000 tons last year. Fruit is a good crop in Kentucky as a whole, though very irregular, apples being estimated at about 5,000,000 bus., and peaches 1,227,000 bushels.

All these 1922 estimates are subject to revision either downward or upward later in the season, depending on whether conditions hereafter are favorable or unfavorable for the crops.

The condition of other crops in Kentucky is reported as follows: Alfalfa 90 per cent; millet 87 per cent; pasture 91 per cent; field peas 93 per cent; field beans 88 per cent; tomatoes 92 per cent; cabbage and onions 89 per cent; grapes 80 per cent; watermelons 82 per cent; muskmelons 83 per cent, broomcorn 85 per cent; sorghum for sirup 90 per cent; average yield of clover hay per acre 1.45 tons.

POROUS TILE IS NOT BEST DRAIN

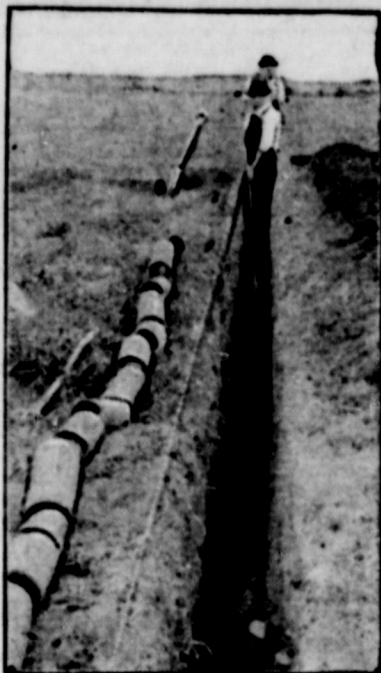

Many Farmers Stick to Old-Fashioned Belief That Water Enters Through Walls.

POROSITY NOT GOOD QUALITY

Little Consideration Should Convince Most Skeptical That Openings Afford Ample Space for Admission of Moisture.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Among the old-fashioned beliefs in connection with the action of tile drains is the one that the water enters not through the open spaces in joints but through the walls of the tile. The fact that drains composed of hard burned or even glazed tile are found to operate as well as the most porous ones has not served completely to dispel this delusion, says the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. Occasionally this view is set forth by writers. Tile makers even advertise their ware as "porous" in the mistaken belief that this is a desirable quality, whereas the contrary is true.

Place Tile as Close Together as Possible for Best Results.

Ample Entry for Water.

Only a brief consideration of the matter should be sufficient to convince the most skeptical that the openings between the tiles afford ample entry for the water—and why should the water force an entry through the walls when the open door is there? The processes of manufacture do not permit of a tile with absolutely true and smooth ends. Pick out two of the most perfectly-shaped ones and it will be found that one cannot abut them together without leaving a considerable opening. In the ordinary run of tile-laying an opening of at least one-eighth inch is to be expected. This one-eighth inch around the periphery of, say, six-inch tile, gives an entrance of two and one-half square inches at each joint. Thus in eleven joints—a length of only twelve feet of six-inch drain—there is an entrance area equal to the cross-sectional area of the tile. In a drain of only moderate length there is likely to be available a dozen times more opening than the interior capacity of the tile can make use of.

Porosity Not Wanted.

One need not fear that the water cannot enter the tile. Place them as close together as possible, turning them around to get the closest possible fit. There need be no hesitation in the use of hard-burned tile, or, if available, sewer pipe with "bell" ends. Durability and strength are the qualities wanted—not porosity. In fact, porosity usually means inferiority, and is to be avoided, especially where the tile are laid above the frost line or so close to the surface as to be affected by the wheels of vehicles or heavy farm machinery.

MOTION PICTURE SHOWS BEES

Need for Requeening Colony From Time to Time and Proper Management Is Shown.

Bee keepers will be interested in a new motion picture prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture showing the best practice in handling bees and the control of bee diseases. The film, which is called "Keeping Bees at Work," is intended to supplement a picture entitled "Bees—How They Live and Work," issued some time ago for more popular use.

The new picture shows the need for requeening the colony from time to time, the way to prepare the bees for wintering, the time to unpack the hives, the control of the swarm, and other details of management. The fact that the bureau of entomology will examine samples of combs to identify diseases and advise on their control is brought out.

The film is in one reel, and may be borrowed by extension workers and others entitled to the privilege, or prints may be purchased for approximately the cost of making them, which is about $27.

The Three Holbeins

By ANNE WHITFIELD

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

Zerubbabel Clay had crossed from Liverpool to New York in an ordinary cabin because it was impossible to secure a private stateroom at short notice. He was fortunate in finding his roommate an intelligent, inoffensive, educated man, and, being of a kindly disposition when his suspicions were not aroused, he became quite confidential with him.

He was particularly drawn to him because he found Mr. Etham interested in art, and he told him about his private collection of old masters. The men exchanged cards, and Mr. Etham agreed to call and inspect the galleries.

About the middle of the second half of the voyage Mr. Etham received a wireless which gave him great distress. His mother was dying in Syracuse, and it was a race against time to get to her death-bed in time to speak to her.

"You'll make it," said Mr. Clay, encouragingly. "You get a taxi at the docks and race for the Grand Central. Plenty of trains."

"I know," said Mr. Etham, "but they'll take an hour clearing my cabin trunk. I wonder whether you'd do me a great kindness. I hesitate to ask it, but—well, I haven't seen her for three years, and I can't bear—"

"That's all right, Etham," said Mr. Clay. "I'll do it. What is it?"

"Why, just pass my trunk through for me as your own," said Mr. Etham. "I've got some labels in my suitcase. I'll put your name on it, and then I can send to your house for it."

"My dear boy, I'll be delighted to," answered Zerubbabel Clay, and he thought no more about the matter.

"What's in here?" asked the customs officer.

"Oh, the usual stuff," replied Mr. Clay.

He was surprised when the officer proceeded to turn the entire contents of the trunk out upon the planks. It was still more surprised when he drew a sharp instrument from his pocket and calmly ripped off the bottom. He was astounded when three ancient pictures were disclosed lying there.

"You've been done," said the officer. "Etham was trying to rush these through the customs without paying duty. We know all about it. They're Holbeins, and our representative in London appraised them before Etham shipped them. They're going to cost you fifteen thousand dollars apiece duty and fine—unless you prefer to forfeit them."

"But it's Etham's trunk!" shouted Zerubbabel Clay.

The officer pointed to the label, and Mr. Clay thought hard. He was a man of quick decisions.

"All right, I'll write you a check," he said quietly.

A week later Mr. Etham called at Mr. Clay's house. He was quite unrepentant.

"Sorry they were wise to it, Mr. Clay," he said, "but of course I'll let you have your forty-five thousand back. I can let you have a check at once. The fact is, I can make a tidy little profit on a sale to a private customer, even as things stand."

Mr. Clay was not a fanatic. He grumbled a little and produced the Holbeins.

"Yes, I picked them up in an old country house," Etham said. "No question as to their genuineness. I'm very much obliged."

Mr. Clay thought hard. He was a man of quick decisions, and he hadn't a Holbein.

"How much are you going to get for them?" he asked.

"Seventy-five thousand," answered Etham.

"I'll give you seventy."

Mr. Etham laughed. "I wouldn't take eighty," he replied. "I've promised my client—"

He went away with Mr. Clay's check for thirty-five thousand dollars in his pocket, representing the difference, and Mr. Clay framed his Holbeins in Fifteenth century oak and hung them in his hall, where they were very much admired.

It was not until the depreciation of securities that Mr. Clay found himself in a hole. He had to raise fifty thousand immediately. He hated to let his Holbeins go, but—

He was a man of quick decisions. He sent for Seacream.

Seacream examined them carefully. "A clever imposture, Mr. Clay," he said. "Done by Vanatello. He works for a lot of dealers. I've employed him myself. Almost perfect—but this brushwork gives him away."

"Well, you happen to be dead wrong," sneered Mr. Clay, "because the customs duty came to just forty-five thousand. Get out of my house!"

And he was so offended that he mortgaged his house instead. Mr. Clay was a man of quick decisions.

Two Fighting Fishes

One of the features of the swordfish is that it has a long high fin which extends nearly the whole length of the back. The swordfish should not be confused with sawfish. The latter fish is furnished with a long bony snout set with heavy spines or teeth readily suggesting a rude saw. The swordfish, which is related to the sharks and rays, is a bad fellow among other fish and uses his saw in a "red-handed" way. But a swordfish, because of his superior swordsmanship will generally smite him "hip and thigh" or hamstring him or puncture him in some other disagreeable way.

Kill Too Many Swordfish

The swordfish is good food for man, and man hunts this fish with a harpoon. Fishermen hunt him even though he is a strong and dangerous fighter. The slaughter of so many swordfish is disturbing the balance of nature, so 'tis said, and allowing the sharks to multiply without those restrictions which swordfish impose.

King Solomon's Magic Carpet

Prince Ahmed's story of the magic carpet of Tangu, which would transport any one who sat on it to the place he wished to reach, has its counterpart in the Koran: King Solomon, it is told, had a carpet with the same magic quality. It was made of green silk, and on it was placed his throne when he wished to travel. Spirits stood on the left hand of the king, and on his right stood men and women. Then Solomon told the wind where he wished to go, and immediately the carpet rose into the air with all who stood upon it, and traveled swiftly to its destination, while birds with outstretched wings flew overhead to scream the royal presence from the sun.

Bankrupt SALE

2 Splendid Farms and Personal Property

AUCTION

Tuesday, Sept. 5th

A FARM OF 177 ACRES and A FARM OF 227 ACRES

BOTH FARMS IN GARRARD COUNTY.

As Trustee in Bankruptcy of David Dudderar, I will sell to the highest bidder on the above date the said two farms and also the following PERSONAL PROPERTY—

20 good hemp brakes, about 7,000 feet of first class, new lumber, one 6 H P gas engine, one 4 H P gas engine, one wood cutter, 3 hillside plows, one hay rake, one water tank, one 2-horse wagon, one 1½ H P gas engine one 12 H P gas engine, one planer, one blacksmith outfit, 6 sacks cement, one lot of loose lumber, one wagon truck, one cook wagon bed, one 1-horse drill, 2 frames, one thrasher, 3 disc plows, one lime spreader, one wheat drill and one black mare.

THE 177 ACRE FARM is located on Gilberts Creek about 3½ miles south-east of Lancaster, also near Goshen pike. This farm has dwelling, two splendid tobacco barns, stock barn and other out buildings. About 60 acres of fine bottom land, and is well watered.

THE 227 ACRE FARM is a part of what is known as the GIBB'S land. To those who know this farm is sufficient recommendation as to quality. Located near the Hyattsville and Kirksville pike, 5 miles northeast of Lancaster. The quality of the soil is the very best of the famous Garrard County sandstone soil. The farm has two small dwellings and two of the best tobacco barns in the county. This farm is a money maker. It is well watered, well fenced, has been in blue grass for years and ready for the production of "BIG" crops.

NOW FIX IN YOUR MIND THE DATE AND THE TIME OF THE SALE. THE 177 ACRE FARM WILL BE SOLD ON THE PREMISES AT 10 O'CLOCK A. M. THE 227 ACRE FARM WILL BE SOLD ON THE PREMISES AT 2 O'CLOCK, P. M.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 5th, THE SALE WILL START AT THE GILBERTS CREEK FARM at ten o'clock in the morning, there we will sell the 177 acre farm and all the Personal Property on the farm. THE SALE WILL THEN BE ADJOURNED to the "GIBBS" farm on the Hyattsville pike and there promptly at 2 o'clock the 227 acre farm will be sold and all the personal property on that farm. A part of the personal property above-mentioned is on each farm.

NOW EVERY ONE KNOWS WHAT A BANKRUPT SALE MEANS. SOMEBODY BUYS A BARGAIN. Possession will be given to the purchaser on January 1st, 1923.

The sale will be made pursuant to the Judgment of the Court in the proceedings of David Dudderar in Bankruptcy and the terms and conditions will be announced at the sale.

LAND VALUES HAVE REACHED LOWEST MARK, THE TIDE HAS TURNED. NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY—AND BUY AT A "FORCED" SALE.

BIG DENIZENS OF DEEP UNSTUDIED

Jonah Last One to Get Inside

Dope on Mammoth Beings

Living in Sea

San Francisco.—Since Jonah obtained his alleged inside information or since the whale rejected that disagreeable prophet, there has been little study made of the feeding and other habits of the mammoth mammals of the sea.

This is the plain inference from statements made in regard to these denizens of the deep by Dr. Barton W. Evermann, director of the Museum of California Academy of Sciences, in a recent statement prepared for the coming commercial congress of the Pan-Pacific Union.

According to Dr. Evermann, the reported finding of a ten-foot shark and 3,000 pounds of sardines in the stomach of a sperm whale emphasizes the fact of how little is known of the preferred menu of these ocean-going animals, and their relation to the fisheries.

Sardine fishermen of Monterey Bay as well as those of Norway, he says, claim that whales herd the sardines in shore and are therefore beneficial to the sardine fishery. They object to the killing of these pelagic voyagers for that reason.

Not only that, but naturalists do not know even what species occur on the Pacific Coast of North America. The Sei or Japanese sardine whale, unknown to the scientific world until found in Japanese waters, in 1912, was taken off our coast in great numbers in 1918, the first year ever identified here.

The whales and other mammals of the sea should be investigated by the Committee on Conservation of Marine Life of the Committee on Pacific Investigations of the Division of Foreign Relations of the National Research Council, Dr. Evermann believes.

Following these investigations, treaties should be entered into between this and other countries for the protection of the largest creatures of the largest sea.

Beef Herds Suffer as

Drouth Cuts Pastures

Hundreds of purebred beef breeding cattle herds in Kentucky are apt to suffer expensive losses in weight during the present drouth existing throughout the state unless extra feeds are supplied to supplement the failing pastures in many sections, according to E. S. Good, head of the animal husbandry department of the College of Agriculture and a well-known authority on beef cattle. Losses in weight at this time of the year are difficult to regain later in the season. The sleek appearance which is a desirable condition in the breeding herd also is marred when the animals in it lose weight, he pointed out.

Silage has been found to be one of the best feeds to tide cattle over during a period of drouth such as being experienced in the State at the present time. Cows that are nursing calves should be given grain in addition to silage, five or six pounds a day being sufficient. About one pound of this grain mixture should be cottonseed meal. Cows without calves can get along with silage alone.

"If no silage is available, hay may be used in its place, in which case the grain feed should be increased to 10 pounds a day for each cow that is nursing a calf. However, cows that are not nursing calves may be maintained on the hay alone.

"Experiences on the college farm indicate that owners of purebred beef breeding cattle herds should find this method of feeding a profitable one. Breeding cattle in the college herd have been given supplementary feeds since the drouth started and this method of herd management will be continued until the pastures are revived with fall rains. Preventing shrink in cattle by supplementing the short pastures should prove economical on every beef breeding farm.

"If silage is fed during the summer, it should be lowered from four to six inches in the pit every day in order to prevent loss from decay. Breeders who have no facilities for feeding silage undoubtedly would profit by making plans now to store some of their green crops, for feed during periods of drouth that exist from time to time in the State."

"The Blues."

This phrase, descriptive of moods of depression or melancholy, has an interesting origin. It was formerly believed that working with indigo dyes caused fits of melancholy, as the chemical worked on the system through the skin. As the dyes were nearly always stained blue in parts of their bodies, the phrase came into current use to express low spirits or moodiness.

Slightly Disfigured BUT STILL IN THE RING

I will on

SATURDAY, AUG. 26th, 1922

AT 2:30 P. M.

Sell the property of MRS. JAMES A. ROYSTON in Lancaster, Kentucky, on Hill Court.

This property consists of a five room house, having a 65x225 foot lot, with good cistern, under shelter, plenty of fruit, with seven bearing plum trees, ten cherry trees, as well as lots of apples and peaches. Plenty of hardy ornamental shrubbery and well shaded lawn. Concrete walk from street to house. Also a very desirable building lot, 55x225 feet.

At the same time will sell the household and kitchen furniture of Mrs. Royston's. This is all first class and in good condition as knowing Mrs. Royston would indicate, and it is well worth your time to be on hand. Among the furniture are several pieces of the "Aunt Ike" kind.

As to terms, well, you wait until you get on the grounds and you will agree that the terms are the best ever offered at a public sale in Lancaster. I will be glad for anyone who wishes a home or to make an investment, to look this property over and Mrs. Royston will be glad to show you over it.

Nice chance to make some money, good neighborhood and on one of the best streets in the city.

At the same time will sell a Castor oil painting, of Dee Gulley while cutting his first teeth, also sell a Record containing the date of births of all unmarried ladies in Lancaster, widows included. Some spirited bidding is expected here.

Colonel Ambiguous Bourne will set the pace with a burst of speed and will doubtless run true to form, full of new corn and green tomatoes.

Please don't fail to come.

3 MEALS COST 16 CENTS AT PRISON

Inmates Frankfort Reformatory Get Plenty and Gain Weight, Warden says

MENU IS CHANGED DAILY

Frankfort, Ky.—It's possible to live and grow hearty on 5 1-3 cents a meal. Of course, one can't eat in restaurants and have music with his meals, but for 16 cents a day one can get all the necessary calories that will enable him to do a full day's work and be healthy. That it is possible has been proved by the 1,500 prisoners at the State Reformatory here.

Not only do the prisoners live for that amount, but, according to H. V. Bastin, Superintendent of the Reformatory, men as a rule increase in weight when they first come to the prison. Prisoners, after being confined in jails for any considerable period, become emaciated, Mr. Bastin said, but after being in the Reformatory for a short time show a marked increase in weight.

Not only that, but precautions are taken to see that the convicts do not fall below a normal weight. They are weighed monthly and when any considerable change in their condition is noted they are placed under observation immediately. The convicts are examined at the hospital and if it develops they have contracted tuberculosis they are put on milk and egg diet. In the case of stomach trouble or other ailments, diets to correct their conditions are provided.

Menu is Changed Daily

The men are given a change in menu daily and the food is selected so that the greatest amount of calories are provided.

The low cost of feeding the prisoners, however, is not due entirely to a careful balancing of rations. Each man is allowed to take any kind of food that is provided and "seconds" and "thirds" can be had. There is no limit to the amount a prisoner can eat, but there is a rule against his taking more than he wants. A convict "eyes cannot be bigger than his stomach." Whatever he takes he must eat. Nothing can be wasted.

Another factor in the low cost of feeding prisoners is the fact food is bought in large quantities and vegetables are raised in the reformatory garden. Labor also is a negligible item of expense. The reformatory has just completed a large ice and cold storage plant, which makes it possible to buy food in larger quantities than heretofore. The cold storage plant consists of five rooms, one of which is for meats, two for vegetables and fruits, and for dairy products and one for ice. Nothing is allowed to spoil.

The total cost of feeding the prisoners from January 1st. to July 1st., 1922 was $37,978.91.

The menu which is changed daily, August 14th, consists of the following: Breakfast, fried beef hearts and gravy, syrup and coffee and light bread; dinner, boiled beans and bacon, raw onions, and syrup and corn bread; supper, stewed peaches and gravy; butter and syrup and light bread.

The following is a typical Sunday menu: Breakfast, apple butter, butter, gravy, syrup and coffee and light bread; dinner, roast beef and gravy, syrup and stewed potatoes and light bread; supper, stewed apples, butter, syrup and light bread.

Barley May Replace Wheat on Many Farms

Winter barley bids fair to replace wheat on many Kentucky farms during the coming year, according to scores of inquiries being received at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. Disappointing returns obtained from wheat during the last few years are held largely responsible for the change while many farmers will switch to barley because of its value as a hog feed when it is ground or soaked. Since barley can be marketed through hogs it also provides an opportunity for increasing the returns from the small grain crop of the farm, according to E. J. Kinney, a member of the station agronomy department.

"Winter barley usually is a highly profitable crop on good land. While not quite as hardy as wheat, it seldom is damaged severely by winter killing if seeded early. It is much more likely to fill out well than wheat while the average yield is much larger. As a nurse crop for clover and grass, winter barley easily is the best grain crop because of its early the first of June and thus furnishes maturity. The grain ripens about the earliest feed crop that can be secured.

"The chief obstacle to the wider production of winter barley in Kentucky is the fact that as a rule it must be seeded before the corn crop can be harvested. As a matter of fact, barley seeding is restricted to tobacco ground or fallow land. It is not safe to seed the crop later than September in Northern and Central Kentucky and October 1st. in Southern Kentucky. When the winters are as mild as those of 1920 and 1921, barley can be sown as late as wheat. The crop is attacked by Hessian fly and in sections where wheat growing is extensive, it is unsafe to plant barley when there are indications that the fly is going to cause trouble. On rich land, six pecks of good seed an acre is sufficient while less fertile lands should be seeded at the rate of two bushels an acre. Preparation of the land is the same as for wheat.

"There is only one extensively grown variety of winter barley, the Tennessee Winter, which is the common barley of Tennessee and Kentucky. It is perhaps the best variety known but in some cases is badly mixed with rye, cheat and other weed seeds. It also is damaged by both kinds of smut. However, many of these foreign seeds can be eliminated by the fanning mill while the formalin treatment will eradicate a good part of the smut."

If some people were required to stand on their dignity they would have to lie down.

Morgan Farmers Enter Drive for Cover Crops

Morgan county farmers are the most recent ones to join the annual fall cover campaign being conducted throughout the State through the co-operation of farmers' organizations, county agricultural agents and the extension division of the College of Agriculture, according to R. E. Stephenson, soils specialist of the college. The campaign is designed to prevent the heavy losses of plant food caused by erosion and leaching when fields are left unprotected during the winter.

Farmers in the county who are co-operating with County Agent R. B. Rankin are expected to make a special effort to have a large acreage of rye seeded, this crop being the principal one that will be used in the campaign. Morgan county has a considerable acreage of rolling land that erodes rapidly when left without a growing crop during the winter. Many tobacco and cowpea fields and a number of corn fields in the county are in special need of some crop to protect them.

In addition to protecting the soil from erosion and leaching, the rye on many farms in the county will be used for pasture. The crop has proved satisfactory for grazing with all kinds of stock, many farmers last year having been especially pleased with it as a pasture for dairy cows and ewes that were suckling lambs. Calves and pigs also thrive on young rye.

A few farmers in the county who have rich soils on their farms will use vetch and rye as their cover crop combination. In this case about 10 pounds of vetch seed will be used with a bushel of rye for each acre. Vetch is especially valuable since it is a legume and therefore builds up the soil. It is hardy but the seed must be inoculated and requires a little better soil than rye.

In most cases where the vetch and rye are seeded together they will be plowed under in the spring for green manure. Farmers who use rye alone will either plow it under or use it as a nurse crop for grass. Satisfactory results are obtained by handling the crop either way. Pasturing the rye when it is used as nurse crop does not injure the grass if the stock are removed early in the season.

35 Cars of Lime Spread on Grayson County Soils

Liberal use of limestone is playing the leading role in a soil improvement movement which Grayson county farmers are carrying on in co-operation with County Agent R. W. Searce and the College of Agriculture extension division. During the last three months, approximately 35 carloads of the material have been used on farms in the county while the steady use of it is expected to be continued for some time. The fact that Mr. Searce, who is directing the work, has been in the county only about three months is taken as an indication of the keen interest which farmers in that section are showing in this method of increasing the crop yields from their land.

Most of the soil types found in the county belong to the coal measures and Chester formations although a few outcroppings of St. Louis limestone are present. Many of the soils are extremely sour and need limestone more than anything else before they can produce clover and other legumes. County Agent Searce is recommending an application of two tons of limestone and 300 pounds of acid phosphate an acre. The fertilizer and limestone in most cases will be used on wheat where clover is to be seeded in the spring. Excellent results are almost sure to follow this method of soil treatment, specialists say.

In order that the use of limestone would not have to be limited, farmers who were interested in the plan of soil improvement contracted for the entire summer output of a quarry in a neighboring county. Under this plan, they are obtaining the stone at a cost of from $1.37 to $1.67 a ton which is said to be cheaper than farmers can crush their own stone. The use of limestone at this price is limited only by the supply, soil specialists say.

Many other counties in the state are using large quantities of limestone for soil improvement, but only those having the advantages of a state-owned crusher in localities where outcroppings of a good grade of stone are abundant have used as much during a short period of time as has been used in Grayson county, it is said.

Farm and Home News From Over Kentucky

Approximately 600 tons of limestone were crushed for Lincoln county farmers during July, according to County Agent C. B. Elston. The material will play a part in the soil improvement work being carried on in the county, will be used on a dozen farms during the coming three months.

Campbell county farmers found it profitable to sell this year's wool crop through a pool, County Agent H. F. Link says. The best grade of wool sold through the association which was organized for that purpose brought 43 cents a pound.

Five Allen county farmers have joined the "Better Sires-Better Stock" campaign being conducted throughout the State by the College of Agriculture extension division and have agreed to use nothing but purebred sires in all their breeding work, according to County Agent A. M. Allen. An effort will be made to enroll 50 farmers of the county in the drive for improved stock.

Grayson county farmers have used a total of 28 carloads of limestone in two months in their efforts to improve soils of the county, according to County Agent R. W. Searce. They have contracted the entire output of a quarry in an adjoining county.

Interest in better livestock is on the increase in Wayne county, County Agent H. J. Hayes says. Six farmers recently were enrolled in the "Better Sires-Better Stock" campaign and will use nothing but purebred sires in all their breeding work while 14 purebred Jersey heifers have just been purchased by farmers in the county and two purebred Jersey cattle herds started.

Why She is a "Pippin."

How and why the word "pippin" ever broke into the slang language, is not known definitely, but the word is an Anglicized form of the medieval French word pepin, which means seed or seedling. When an apple lover of the Dark Ages produced a new variety he called it such-and-such a pepin. It is said that there is no apple stock that is more than 400 years old, though the statement would be hard to prove. A Yorkshire pippin must be very old, and a peppin may have descended from the days of the Romans.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

HENRY D. BAUGHMAN'S 217 Acre Farm

For the Purpose of Settling the Estate of the Late Henry D. Baughman, the Undersigned Administrator Will at 10:30 A. M.

Saturday, Sept. 16th

On the premises sell at public outcry to the highest and best bidder the splendid 217-Acre Farm belonging to the estate of H. D. Baughman, and located about 4 1/2 miles South of Stanford, on the county road leading from the Stanford and Crab Orchard pike to the Stanford and Otteheim pike. It will be offered in separate tracts and then as a whole.

This farm has been in the Baughman family for almost 100 years and has been well cared for, and the improvements are good. It has a 2-story brick dwelling, large tobacco and stock barns, and other necessary outbuildings; never-failing water supply. It is rich and fertile soil, without an acre of poor land on it. It is generally regarded and has been spoken of for years as "one of the very best farms in Lincoln county."

TERMS—The purchaser will be required to pay 10 per cent cash on the day of sale, and 23 1-3 per cent January 1st., 1923, when full possession is given, and general warranty deed made, and the balance to be paid in two equal installments, due in 1 and 2 years from date, with interest at 6 per cent from January 1st., 1923, with lien retained to secure same. Administrator to pay 1922 taxes, and the purchaser to pay 1923 taxes. Seeding privileges this Fall.

Uncle Thomas' Strategy

By CHARLES E. BAXTER

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

"It's all right! I've fixed things up," said Uncle Thomas to his brother, Jim Newrich.

"Oh, thank heavens!" cried Elma Newrich. "Then she's consented? It would have killed me if my darling boy had really married that actress."

"Yes, it's all right," said Uncle Thomas. "I went to see her and had a straight talk with her. I told her just what the situation was. If she married Dick, you'd cut him off without a penny. But, inasmuch as she had the evidence with which to bring a breach-of-promise suit, you'd be willing to pay her $10,000 if she'd fall in with my plan."

"She will?" "She jumped at it, Jim. You're all to be here tonight, you understand, you and Elma, and Dick and Miss Tremlett. You'll tell Miss Tremlett that your brother Thomas is expected to pay her his compliments. I come in, spot her, stand rigid, and denounce her in thunderous tones as the woman whom I married five years ago, who ran away with a half-caste comedian. She sinks out, I follow, cursing, slip her the $10,000 in the hall, and she makes her getaway. Dick's saved."

"Thomas," said Jim Newrich, in a husky voice, "you're a jewel of a brother. I wish every man had one like you. Here's your check; cash it before closing time, and slip her the wad as you said."

"Oh, poor Dick, my precious, innocent Dick, what could he see in that dreadful woman?" sobbed Elma Newrich.

"Oh, she ain't bad," said Uncle Thomas. "Come to that, Jim, I dunno as the boy mightn't have done worse for himself."

"Oh, Thomas, how can you speak like that?" said his sister-in-law reproachfully. "Nobody knows where she comes from, and she's on the stage—that's immoral enough, isn't it? And not a penny to her name!"

Uncle Thomas would have stopped to discuss the point, but he remembered that the bank would close in half an hour, and so he hurried away.

Neither of the Newriches had ever seen Miss Tremlett, and despite their prejudice against her they were impressed against their will by the charming, vivacious young woman whom Dick proudly brought into the drawing room that evening. And when she spoke Elma Newrich was painfully aware that the visitor's accent was more Bostonian than her own.

Jim Newrich took her hand. "We fought against this match, both of us, I confess," he said, "but now that we've seen you we are resigned to it. Eh, Elma?"

"Yes," said Elma Newrich in melancholy tones. "You have no money, and you are in an immoral occupation," continued Mr. Newrich, "but you can live down your past as a member of the Newrich family. Money counts for a good deal, and I have six millions. I paid a hundred thousand for that painting by Raphael."

"And as our daughter-in-law," put in his wife, "any reflection upon you will be a reflection upon me."

"That's all right, mother," said Dick easily. "You'll like each other first-rate."

The door opened. "Mr. Thomas Newrich," announced the English butler, clicking his heels.

Uncle Thomas entered. Dick stepped forward.

"This is my fiancée, Miss Tremlett," he began; and stopped as Uncle Thomas became petrified.

Then he seemed astounded to hear Uncle Thomas burst into a hollow laugh.

"Yes? Well, I don't think she'll be your bride, Dickie," he said. "Infamous woman, do you know me? Do you remember the husband whom you deserted to run off with an off-color low comedian five years ago?"

"What?" shouted his brother. "Look at her! Look at her face and let that be her answer," thundered Uncle Thomas.

Miss Tremlett, sobbing convulsively into her handkerchief, moved slowly toward the door. "Viper!" hissed Uncle Thomas, and slipped a wad into her hand. "Begone! From this home that you have polluted with your presence!"

"I'm going right now," sobbed Miss Tremlett.

"Come along, Dick! Good-by for the present, folks!" she called.

"What's that?" shouted the Newriches together.

"It's all right, Dick's wise," called Miss Tremlett gayly. "We've booked our berths for our honeymoon trip to South America. Thanks for the present. We'll continue our talk when we come home again. I'm glad you're so rich, father and mother-in-law."

The Diamond Beetle. One of the most beautiful of all insects is the "diamond beetle" of Brazil. According to the recent investigations of an American naturalist who has lately visited that country, the sparkling colors of this beetle, which blazes with extraordinary brilliancy in the sunshine, originate in an entirely different way from the hues of butterflies. The scales of the diamond beetle appear to consist of two layers, separated by an exceedingly thin interspace, and the light falling upon them experiences the effect of interference, so that the resulting colors correspond with those of thin plates or of the soap bubble.

MARKETING KEY TO FARM REPORT SAYS CANTRILL

"Something Is Wrong When 60 Per Cent of Farmers Live on Mortgaged Lands" Is Assertion

Campbellsville, Ky., Aug. 14th.—Congressman J. Campbell Cantrill, in an address to a large crowd of farmers and tobacco growers of Taylor and adjoining counties Saturday, declared that "something is wrong when 60 per cent of the farmers of the United States live on mortgaged farms," expressed the opinion that agricultural conditions in the United States in the past few years were due to a defective system of marketing and declared that the only remedy for these conditions lies in co-operative marketing of farm products.

Here in Kentucky," said Mr. Cantrill, "we grow half the tobacco produced in the United States. Our climate and soil are ideal for tobacco production. Our tobacco growers are experts in that work, but they have been receiving less than it cost them to grow their tobacco because with all their expert knowledge of tobacco growing, they know nothing of marketing."

Mr. Cantrill said the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association had adopted the method of the great manufacturing corporation and that it now is selling the growers' product just as these big manufacturing concerns are selling theirs.

Growers in Competition In the old days, he said, before the successful organization of the growers into a compact body, there was practically one buyer of tobacco while there were 60,000 to 75,000 sellers. Naturally, he said, the tobacco of all the farmers was in competition with that of all other farmers with the inevitable result that prices, except during the years of the World war or at other extraordinary times, barely returned the cost of production and in some years, as in 1920, for instance, failed to realize cost of production.

Four beeves and 26 sheep were slaughtered to provide the materials for the barbecue and 250 gallons of burgoo were dispensed to the big crowd, which was estimated at 10,000. Many contracts were signed, but the number was not given out, as Chairman Sam Botton and his assistants were still signing up growers as darkness fell.

Auto Licenses to Be Still Higher

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky will get an increase revenue from automobile licenses next year, the fee on the heavier and more expensive cars being raised slightly, while those on the lighter and less expensive machines are reduced, officials believe, under a law passed by the session of the General Assembly.

The state will lose approximately $60,000 in revenue on Fords alone, or about $1 for each type it is figured but the new horse-power hundred weight law will result in increases on other cars which will make up more than the $60,000.

The new law provides 25 cents per horsepower, as well as 40 cents for each hundred weight of the car. The measure, when introduced in the legislature, was opposed by the Louisville Automobile Club on the ground that it would cause confusion and also that it would increase automobile taxation as a whole.

Under the old law which taxed the cars according to horsepower only, it often happened that expensive machines with a low horsepower rating were taxed less than cheaper and lighter machines.

Speaking of Flesh

A Newport family of heavy-weight proportions which has contributed at least three "fat persons" to circuses was brought to light recently in police court at Newport. Mrs. Fred M. Yates, in applying for a pardon for her husband held on a disorderly conduct charge, told the court that her mother, Mrs. Rosa Lee Welsh, weighs 300 pounds, besting her father, Thomas Welsh by 100 pounds. "My brother, Charles," the woman explained, "weighs more than either of his parents, 340 pounds. Then there was my Aunt Nettie, who was the fat lady in Barnum & Bailey's circus, tipping the scales at 650. My three uncles weigh 280, 400 and 300. Two of her heaviest uncles' children have just joined a circus to display their avoirdupois." Mrs. Yates weighs 180 and her husband 135.

Don't dare to do right. Do it, instead.

We all know a few things, but think more.

This world is full of bunk, but this assertion is not a part of it.

Never sell a stale joke. Forcing a laugh is too annoying to your friends.

When your friends begin to tell you their troubles, unload yours on to them. It works.

Some people don't believe in paying others back in their own coin. They keep it, instead.

Still, if we are unable to get coal this winter it will save us the trouble of kicking over the price.

When we hear a fellow orating on the glories of his past we wonder why in heck he is so silent about his present.

It's a wise man who knows when he is a fool.

When tired of talking, give others a chance.

Commend as often as you find fault, and more people will commend you.

Some people are proud of their ancestors, while others are not to blame.

It will be a relief when Europe gets on its feet—provided it don't sit down again.

Don't tell other people how much you are worth. It isn't wise to overshoot the mark.

Never tell a woman how old you think she is. You don't know what she expects you to say.

The modest way to advertise your prosperity is to dress your wife in accordance with your income.

All Things to All Men

By MORRIS SCHULTZ

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

I suppose I'm still a kid, but if sister Anne had taken my tip she'd have got married a good deal sooner than I did. I shall now recount the adventures of Sister Anne with her various suitors.

First, I must tell you that we're quite ordinary people. Father goes to business, and mother runs the home and bullies him. Sister Anne teases mother, and everybody sits on me, because I'm only fifteen. That's ordinary enough, isn't it?

Sister Anne's a stenographer—that's ordinary, too. And she's just an ordinary sort of girl, except when those love-sick days dawn, and then she goes out of her head.

"Anne, is that young Mr. Smith sweet on you?" mother demanded.

"It appears so," murmured Anne.

"Did he kiss you last night?"

"Why, no, mother, of course not!" said sister Anne.

"Then it must have been the tap dripping," said mother. "You'd better tell Mr. Hodgkins to have it fixed."

So that was why sister Anne had got so sporty. Young Mr. Smith was a sport and had a bulldog, and sister Anne had joined the golf club soon after meeting him.

When he turned her down, I said: "Sister Anne, a fellow doesn't want his like, he wants something quite different, you take my tip for it."

Sister Anne wouldn't listen to reason. She didn't care much, anyway, because she'd struck up an attachment with the Rev. Smale. She was interested in social service, and always going into the homes of the poor.

"Haven't you got enough sense to know that a three months' old child can't drink pure milk?" I heard her ask old Mrs. O'Rourke.

"And pray, how many have you had of your own, mam?" demanded Mrs. O'Rourke.

Sister Anne said: "None of your impudence," and Mrs. O'Rourke muttered something nasty. Sister Anne couldn't be beaten down. Sometimes when she was carrying a basket with fried doughnuts and other little luxuries for the poor, she'd meet the Rev. Smale, and they'd stop and have a talk together.

I suppose you all know how the Rev. Smale had been engaged all the time to an actress? Terrible scandal in our village. After that, sister Anne moped and pined. I'd told her what I'd told her before, and she told me to shut up.

However, Mr. Seebright was the cream of the collection. He was an artist, but he had money of his own. He'd rented the Lathrop cottage for the summer, and before you knew where you were he and sister Anne had met each other, and sister Anne bobbed her hair and wore a green blouse and yellow skirt, and beaten brass bangles thick all up one arm.

"Land's sake!" said mother. "Think you'll hook him, Anne?"

"Mr. Seebright and I are quite platonic," said sister Anne.

Mother looked pleased at that, and said he must be asked to supper.

I never saw such a pair. There they sat, talking all the time about "The Beautifull," and whether Michael Angelo had had the same cultural influence upon his time that the Pre-Raphaelites—something. It was quite a dark night, and mother had made some raspberry cordial, and—

"There's that tap dripping again!" said mother.

"It sounds like rain coming down the gutter," father thought.

I knew what it was, and sure enough they came in arm in arm.

"Well, we're engaged," says sister Anne.

Everybody kissed Mr. Seebright except father, and Mr. Seebright looked uncomfortable. They were married a month later, and spent the interval quarrelling like cats and dogs.

They spent their honeymoon at Niagara Falls, and came back to a rented cottage across the road. I said they'd gone away quarrelling like cats and dogs. Well, when they came back they seemed perfectly devoted to each other.

"I can't make out what's come over 'em," said mother.

I heard them talking on the porch when they thought no one was near.

"If you'd guessed how I hated it, darling," said Mr. Seebright.

"How was I to know?" asked Jill.

"I thought you liked it."

"A man likes his opposite," said Mr. Seebright—and I nearly laughed out loud. "The minute I saw you I resolved to wear you away from art, so that I could get a rest from it sometimes."

"Well, how was I to know?" asked sister Anne.

"I wonder if that's why Bob Smith and the Rev. Smale—"

"What's that?" asked Mr. Seebright.

"Oh, nothing, dear."

I wondered whether our folks would hear the Seebrights' water-tap dripping.

Willing to Help.

Madge—I hear she married him out of sympathy.

Marjorie—Yes; she was sorry to see such a rich young man spending all his money on himself.

ICE CREAM MARKETS

Want Butter Fat Reduced in Product

Louisville, Ky.,—Acting on a petition of ice cream manufacturers of Kentucky, the Bureau of Foods, Drugs and Hotels of the State Board of Health will hold a hearing in Louisville early in September to decide whether manufacturers of ice cream shall be permitted to reduce the percentage of butter fat from 10 per cent in plain cream and 8 per cent in fruit cream to 8 and 6 per cent respectively, it was announced here by Miss Sarah H. Vance, director of the Bureau.

The manufacturers who have requested that this change in the regulations be made, Miss Vance says, give as their reasons for it the fact that every State surrounding Kentucky has the lower percentage requirement and that the lower standard invariably results in an increased sale of dairy products.

Before the State Board of Health takes any action in the matter, however, Miss Vance added, it desires to know what other persons interested wish, and for this reason dealers who handle ice cream and members of the general public that use it are invited to communicate their views to the Bureau of Foods, Drugs and Hotels before September 5th.

In Memoriam

In sad and loving memory of Bernard Simpson, who departed this life August 7th., 1922.

Two long weeks ago you left us, And your loving voice is still, Tho you passed away so suddenly, It seems we never can forget.

In the grave yard, softly sleeping, Where the flowers gently wave Lies the one we loved so dearly In the cold and silent grave.

Peaceful be thy silent slumber, Peaceful in thy grave so low; You will no more join our numbers, You no more our sorrows know.

But again sometime, our loved one, When our days of life have fled, In Heaven above we hope to meet you, Where no farewell tears are shed.

Drunkards Among Insects.

Entomologists have found that ivy flowers provide a veritable bacchanalian festival for a number of insects. When the willow is in bloom they find a similar scene of dissipation around its yellow catkins. There is a fly so addicted to wine that Linnaeus named it the "cellar fly," which appellation Kirby changed to the more appropriate one of the "cellar wine drinker." Kirby states that the larvae of this little fly, whose diet he could attest from his own observations, disdains to feed on anything but wine or beer.

Brodhead Twirler Bumps Paint Lick

Brodhead, Ky., Aug. 20.—Paint Lick bumped into a real pitcher by the name of Bacon and got trounced to the tune of 5 to 1. Bacon was so stingy with base hits, he only allowed three. Red Beazley started the game for Paint Lick, but gave way to Lackey, Paint Lick's pitching ace, in the third. Lackey held the Brodhead boys down pretty well for the remainder of the game. They say Bacon don't pitch such a thing as a curve ball, but they get up to a batter a dnmake a guy think "they aint when they are." That kind are what they call "mean hops." The battery for Paint Lick, Beazley, Lackey, and Patrick; for Brodhead, Bacon and Pike.
